LCC's OWN KLCC

Lane Community College is moving ahead with plans for a new educational FM radio station to be used in training of radio station personnel, according to Roger Houglum, Electronics Division Chairman. The LCC Board of Directors has authorized the preparation of an application to the Federal Communication Commission for a "construction permit" for such a new station. When completed, the station would be licensed to Lane Community College. To indicate the school affiliation, the call letter KLCC will be requested.

Radio station KRVM, licensed to the Eugene Public Schools, will be largely staffed this coming year by a paid professional staff resulting in fewer training opportunities in program production and station operation for LCC radio students. However, a few second year radio Communications students will probably be auditioned next fall for positions on the KRVM staff.

Facilities sought in the application will be FM Chanel 212, 90.3 mc, with a power of 10 watts. When the station is moved to the new campus, current plans call for increasing the transmitter power to 250 or 1000 watts at a site on Blanton Heights. This would insure coverage of all the Upper Willamette Valley.

DIPLOMAS AND REPORT CARDS

Degrees and Certificates will be mailed to graduates after they have met the following requirements:

1. Academic clearance following final exams
2. Business Office clearance
3. Return of cap and gown

It is planned to mail report cards the 15th of June.

THE TORCH STANDS CORRECTED

It's not true!

Despite printed reports to the contrary Aircraft Instructor Carl Lemke insists that news that he is retiring this year is "greatly exaggerated."

The editorial staff of the Torch hastens to concur. Due to a misunderstanding on the part of the interviewing reporter, the story of Mr. Lemke's retirement was printed a few years prematurely. The Torch staff expresses regret and promises to reprint the story in the June, 1976, edition of the Torch.
