Dedication one-time 'happening'

DEL E. WEBB, multi-millionaire builder and president of the Del E. Webb Corporation, will be the keynote speaker at the formal dedication of Lane Community College Saturday, Oct. 11 at 11 a.m.

Mr. Webb, of Phoenix, Arizona, will speak on "Industry and the Community College."

Webb became one of the top builder-contractors in the world when a bout with typhoid fever forced him to relenquish a promising professional baseball career because of an ailing arm. He followed his father's profession and started as a carpenter and worked his way up.

Also speaking at the Saturday ceremonies is Oregon Congressman JOHN DELLENBACK. Congressman Dellenback, representative of Oregon's Fourth District, will address the group on "Government and the Community College."

The ceremonies will be held on the Gonyea Terrace between the Center and Business Buildings. The Terrace was named for Wilford Gonyea, lumberman-industrialist, who donated most of the 158-acre site on which the campus now stands. Should it rain, the activities will be moved to the first floor of the Center.

$3,000 LCC goal for United Appeal

Once again the United Appeal Drive is in full swing on campus with Director of Placement BUCK BAILY heading the LCC drive. This year LCC's goal is $3000. This means that if every staff member gives one day's wages, Lane would be well over its goal. Pledges can be given through payroll deductions in the Business Office. The total deductions may be taken over an eight-month period, from November to June.

Buck reports that the Electronics and Mechanics departments have already turned in 100% participation by department members.

Several other VIPs will be attending including MARVIN J. FELDMAN, from the Office of education in Washington D.C., DONALD STEPHENSON, vice-president of the Del E. Webb Corporation, Riverside, Calif. branch, and Oregon Governor TOM MCCALL, who will participate in the log-cutting ceremonies which will replace the traditional ribbon sniping.

Governor McCall will cut a log symbolic of the Oregon lumber industry. When the log is cut, helium-filled balloons will be released in the sky representing the mass ascension of LCC into the future.

CAMPUS TOURS FEATURED

Student-conducted tours of the campus will be featured during the three-day dedication ceremonies of LCC this weekend.

Members of the ASCUS, Circle K, student senate and ACET clubs, and individual students from other groups will conduct the mile-long tours of all 14 buildings. The complete tour takes about two hours.

The tours will begin today at 1 p.m. until 6 p.m.; Saturday from noon until 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1-5 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Staff members, new and old alike, who have never toured the campus in its entirety are encouraged to participate in the tours.

Members of the executive committee for Staff Association have been assigned an office on the second floor of the Administration Building. Room 209, formerly the office of Special Training Programs Director LARRY MURRAY, is open daily, and committee members are urged to use this facility for staff business. The telephone extension is 380.

Math teachers meet

The Eighth Annual Northwest Mathematics Conference will be held at Churchill High School Oct. 10-11, reports LCC Math Chairman HOWARD ZINK, who is a member of the conference planning committee.

The conference is sponsored by the Oregon Council of Teachers of Mathematics, Washington State Mathematics Council and the British Columbia Association of Mathematics Teachers.

The conference will feature exhibits, and several local and national speakers. There will also be many group sessions with local instructors sharing their ideas and concepts.

LCC Math Profs LELAND HALBERG, JOHN LOUGHLIN, and VERN SCHWIN will be presiding over some of the sections. One of the sessions will be held on campus, "Computer Programming" in Science 125 at 3:45 p.m. Saturday.

Names in the News

Oh Margaret, fleet of foot, now you will be tested in the crucible of true speed. Tiny legs and tiny feet will lead and you will follow. Medals of gold and precious medallions, oh scorn, scorn. What does that mean to short, fat legs that were born to outdistance even the swiftest of mothers.

And father, strong you might be, but oh how weak when little arms, waving and reaching, capture you. Now you have two girls and proud enough for both of them.

All this is by way of telling their friends at Lane that Margaret and Eddie Bailes have a new baby girl, Felicia Renee, born Sept. 4, weighing 7 pounds 8 ounces.

Margaret and Eddie now live in Oakland, Calif. at 4064 East 18th Apt. C.

Electronics Chairman ROGER HOUGLUM has been in the hospital this past week undergoing extensive tests. He has not been feeling well for several weeks.

'round the campus

Means of making graduation ceremonies more meaningful are being explored by the student-staff Convocations and Public Events Committee. Staff Association President JED MERRILL is working with the committee in developing some ways to affect positively next year's ceremony. He is to report to the President's Cabinet this month.

An emergency security policy has been set up by the Administration, placing one person from each building in charge of that building. Each person will have a key to his respective building for use in letting people in and out.

The following people have been asked to serve in this capacity: Administration, President PICKERING; Business, Chairman JOHN KREITZ; Electronics, Chairman ROGER HOUGLUM; Center, Director KEITH HARKER; Art, Chairman ROSCO WRIGHT; Health, Chairman JOHN DICKSON; Physical Education, Chairman CECIL HODGES; Industrial Technology, Chairman CARL BLOOD; Forum, Chairman GINNY DECHAIINE; Mechanics, GEORGE LUCK; Airframe, Chairman MEL GASKILL; Apprenticeship, Director NILE WILLIAMS; and Science, Chairman JOHN JACOBS. Each person should have an alternate appointed.

Any questions concerning the 14 buildings should be brought to the attention of these people.

NEWS BRIEFS

A reminder to all staff: the college bookstore, on the mezzanine floor of the Center Building is open evenings Monday through Thursday from 6:30-8:30 p.m. The regular day time hours are 8-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The office of the Oregon Board of Education has moved to its news office at 942 Lancaster N.E. Salem, Oregon.

The phone numbers will remain the same.

Editor's note:

Area citizens have been asking that more emphasis be placed on occupational education instead of the arts. In the following article by LEO PERLIS cites a need for the arts in the union halls to enrich the lives of the workers.

To enrich our lives*Oregon Labor Press 9-19-69*

Bring arts to union halls

By LEO PERLIS

WASHINGTON (PAI) — The AFL-CIO arts demonstrations in Minneapolis, Buffalo, New York and Louisville have been going on now for more than a year.

Our first concern was to enrich the quality of workers lives. We feel that in addition to higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions, we also need to enrich our lives by participating in the artistic and cultural activities of our communities, by at least trying to enjoy the things that are available to us — to see a painting, to listen to music, to attend a concert, to see the things that are available in our communities — things that were not previously known to us — can be valuable experiences — and this is one of the reasons we are involved in this arts project.

We have reached some negative conclusions and some positive conclusions. The negative conclusions are that the artistic community — heretofore, and to a large extent even now — has been pretty much the monopoly of those who could afford to pay the price.

You need time, you need money. Concerts, the opera, the ballet, the symphony are often very expensive.

Control of these institutions was largely in the hands of the well-placed, the well-to-do and the well-educated. The top society people were largely — historically — in control of these institutions, just as in the past they were in control of our voluntary health and welfare services. And we find that out more and more.

We also find that in many ways, these artistic and cultural institutions are rather static. They say to the people of their communities, "here we are, come and get us."

We think it is about time they went into the community, into the union halls, into the neighborhoods with their wares, to show them and try to inspire active citizen participation.

There is no reason why labor people ought not to serve on the boards and committees of the symphony, or the ballet, or the opera.

There is no reason why pictures ought not to be taken from the Metropolitan Museum of Art or the Modern Museum of Art and shown in union halls.

There is no reason why mobile units can't go into the poor neighborhoods.

There is no reason why more experimentation in the arts cannot be done, even under union auspices. So we have learned many things of a negative nature. They are, as a matter of fact, stratified, in many cases. It is about time that the whole base of artistic and cultural life be extended, so that more and more people participate, so that more and more people pay for them, and so that more and more people can and do enjoy them.

We would like to build audiences among our own members for all legitimate artistic institutions, including, of course, commercial shows.

After all, the commercial shows employ union labor, too, and they are among the finest presentations, after all. The plays produced on Broadway are among the finest creations of American playwrights and the acting professional.

But, we have another goal in mind.

We would like to see the labor movement in these four communities initiate programs to provide new artists, new ideas — to experiment, where sometimes the establishment — the artistic establishment — does not provide for them.

We would like to have in our union halls — or perhaps a center in every community — an AFL-CIO reading room, where young people could come in and experiment in new art forms — try to attract new audiences — try to develop new ideas.

(The above article is excerpted from remarks made by Leo Perlis, national AFL-CIO community service activities director on the Mutual radio network program, Labor News Conference.)

OACCE confab at LCC

"Adult Education: A Slumbering Giant Aroused" is the theme of the second annual Oregon Association for Continuing Community Education scheduled for Oct. 10-11 at LCC, in the Forum Building.

The conference will begin tonight at 6 p.m. with registration and dinner. Elmer Clausen, director of Adult Education at Olympia, Washington, will be the guest speaker.

The two-day meeting will include both exhibits and several group sessions.

All Adult Education instructors and aides are invited to attend. Cost is $3.00.

Conference chairman is NILE WILLIAMS, director of adult education at LCC.

LCC's people come from near and far

More than 100 new classified and professional employees have joined the LCC staff since July 1, 1969. Thirty-eight new instructors have been hired, 51 classified people, six counselors, five administrators, including our new president, and three coordinators.

DOROTHY KELLOGG and NANCY BURIAN, personnel clerks, have compiled some general information about the new instructors, and CAROL BECKLEY, secretary to BILL WATKINS, business manager, has given us the names of the new classified people.

Here are the new people on campus and where to find them.

KLCC RETURNS TO AIR

KLCC, LCC's educational broadcasting station returned to the air last week to begin this year's broadcasting.

On the air from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays, KLCC operates on the standard FM dial at 90.3 megacycles.

A new feature this year is the addition of the United Press International news service. This should triple the station's news coverage, adding to current coverage of campus and local news according to Mass Communications Prof TOM LICHTY.

The station will also feature a new two-hour series called "FOCUS" nightly at 7 p.m. The program will offer both a musical and an informative format.

The series will feature "A Talk With Dale Parnell", featuring State Superintendent Dale Parnell in a short interview with the program host, followed by opening the phone lines to allow listeners to call in questions to Dr. Parnell. The calls will be aired along with his reply. This program will be repeated at least once a month with a different guest each time. Other FOCUS programs will present musical selections; one will present one-hour versions of the Shakespearean performances held in Ashland last year.

Business faculties meet

Business Education faculties from around the state met on campus Saturday in an informal meeting aimed at establishing better communication between the community colleges and four-year institutions.

Discussion groups met to exchange ideas including accounting, marketing, data processing, management, communications and business skills.

One of the groups discussed last year's Senate Bill 144, dealing with the improvement of college teaching.

Glenn Jackson, chairman of the board at Pacific Power and Light Company was the speaker for the luncheon meeting.

Kinsolving-McBain debate Oct. 23

"Is the Church Dead?" is the topic of the first public convocation scheduled at LCC this year. The discussion will feature Dr. Doward McBain and the Rev. Lester Kinsolving, who spoke at Lane last spring.

The 8 p.m. Forum will be held next Thursday, Oct. 23, in Forum 301.

Dr. McBain, the more conservative of the two, is now serving as senior minister of the First Baptist Church in Phoenix, Ariz. and is the immediate past president of the American Baptist Convention.

Rev. Kinsolving is a syndicated columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle on religion and social problems. He has also served as chaplain for the late Bishop Pike and has been Rector for several Episcopal churches in the northwest.

Dr. McBain is actively involved in the ecumenical movement and has held many positions of responsibility in Baptist affiliated organizations. For the past 12 years he has been a guest professor in pastoral theology and ecumenics at California Seminary.

Rev. Kinsolving recently served on the Governor's Population Study Commission in California and has been lecturing extensively in the northwest on the moral problems of today's society.

The two men express differing viewpoints in analyzing the problems of the church in our present society.

Ragozzino named

Performing Arts Chairman ED RAGOZZINO has been named project coordinator for Eugene's projected $6-million auditorium convention center. The appointment was made last week by the Lane County Auditorium Association Board of Directors. Ragozzino's duties will be to act as liaison between the architects and the association. He will also be working on a survey of users and potential users of the facility on their needs.

Second floor syndrome

I have just found out that administrators are a fortunate lot. For as everyone knows, an administrator has nothing to do. That is except: To decide what is to be done; to tell somebody to do it; to listen to reasons why it should not be done; why it should be done by somebody else; or why it should be done in a different way; and to prepare arguments in rebuttal that should be convincing and conclusive; to check up to find if the thing has been done; to discover that it has not been done; to listen to excuses from the person who should have done it and did not; and to think up arguments to overcome the excuses.

To follow up a second time to see if the thing has been done; to discover that it has been done incorrectly; to point out how it should have been done; to conclude that as long as it has been done it may as well be left as it is; to wonder if it is not time to get rid of a person who cannot do a thing correctly; to reflect that the person in fault has a wife and seven children and that no administrator in the world would put up with him for a moment; and, that in all probability, any successor would be just as bad or worse.

To reflect how much simpler and easier the thing would have been had he done it himself in the first place; to reflect such that if he had done it himself he would have been able to do it right in twenty minutes, but that as things turned out he himself spent two days trying to find out why it took somebody else three weeks to do it wrong, but to realize that such an idea would have had a highly demoralizing effect in the organization, because it would strike at the very foundation of the belief of all employees that an administrator has really nothing to do.

OCCA news briefs

All sections of the Oregon Community College Association are working on a community college code, through the appropriate state commissions, to present to the Legislative Interim Sub-committee on Community College Education.

DICK NEWELL, vice-president of the LCC faculty section will attend a faculty work session Oct. 18. The group will be discussing personnel policies.

ERIC Seeks Data

The ERIC Clearinghouse for Junior Colleges, located at the University of California, Los Angeles, is one of 19 clearinghouses in the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC), a subdivision of the United States Office of Education. The Clearinghouse seeks research or research-related reports pertaining to all facets of community colleges from faculty, students, administrators, Board members, and others.

Formal and informal reports are solicited, including in-house studies, conference proceedings, evaluation reports, speeches, dissertations, theses, seminar papers, or unpublished articles that do not customarily receive widespread circulation. The Clearinghouse analyzes, abstracts, and announces such documents in the monthly journal RESEARCH IN EDUCATION, the official publication of the ERIC system. Documents are made available on microfiche and hardcopy to individual readers.

The Clearinghouse also publishes documents that analyze and synthesize junior college research. Specifically, the Clearinghouse produces 1) a monthly review of research, 2) short topical papers, 3) in-depth monographs, and 4) specialized bibliographies.

Respond to : ERIC Clearinghouse for Junior Colleges, 96 Powell Library, UCLA, Los Angeles, California 90024.

Names in the News

SANDY HOFFMAN, secretary in Adult Education was married Friday night to Mr. JOHN BAUER. Sandy and John honeymooned in Eastern Oregon on a deer-hunting trip with her parents.

HELEN HAYNIE, President PICKERING's secretary, and husband AL are grandparents of a new baby boy, James Albert IV. James is the son of James and Rae Nora Haynie.

He is also the grandson of former LCC secretary MARGE BLOOD. James was born Oct. 15.

Dr. KEN HILLS, director of counseling at Lane for the past two years, left Oct. 17 to become Director of Student Services for the State Board of Education.

Counselor BILL WRIGHT will serve as acting director of counseling until a replacement is appointed.

'Round the campus

The faculty section of Staff Association held elections last Thursday and Friday and the results will be announced next week. This week the section will be petitioning for OCCA delegates, along with all other sections. Watch for notices in campus mail.

President PICKERING will speak at a joint meeting of the Cottage Grove Lions and Rotary Clubs in the Center Building Oct. 23.

JEAN SPECHT, former secretary to LRC Director KEITH HARKER, is now supervising the Instructional Materials Department. Any requests for graphic arts or printing should be directed to Jean.

MARGARET KNUTSON, secretary to College Facilities Superintendent BILL COX, has been elected state chairman of the newly founded classified section of the OCCA. Margaret is now a member of the Central Coordinating Council. Congratulations to her and her constituents who have worked hard in leading this organization.

Grateful students keep in touch

Letters from students grateful for what LCC has done for them continue to arrive. Here's part of one from a UO dropout:

"When I went out to Lane I was unsure of myself and afraid that my lack of resources would hold me back from my educational goals. It was a member at the staff at Lane, Mrs. DIXON, who helped me see my way through the fog. She guided me not only in scheduling my classes, but also in applying for the financial aid which I so desperately needed. I was overwhelmed by the support and encouragement I received from all the staff members at Lane, and more than grateful for the financial aid I was fortunate enough to receive Spring Term.

"That term at Lane, I made more progress educationally than ever before. I took a speed-reading course at the Study Skills Center and raised my reading rate from 271 to 375. I also got my current GPA up to 2.75, an all time high for my college work. I learned the value of classroom involvement, and was encouraged by the small classes and relaxed atmosphere."

Calendar committee named

A College Calendar Committee has been appointed to work on the scheduling and further organization of the Master Calendar. Those on the committee include: GERRY RASMUSSEN, associate dean; BOB MARSHALL, registrar; JACK CARTER, student activities coordinator; MARSTON MORGAN, institutional research director; BILL MANSELL, clerk-controller; and BERT DOTSON, assistant to the President. The Staff Association will appoint one instructor and the Student Senate will name one student to be on the committee.

LCC convocations taped on IRS

The vice-presidents of the RCA Corporation will be on campus tomorrow to inspect the completed Information Retrieval System on the fourth floor of the Center Building.

REMINDER: All requests for campus space must appear on the College Calendar. Scheduling is done through WENDY WESTFALL at the Information Desk, ext. 310.

Mini concerts start tomorrow

Tomorrow, Oct. 28, the library and the performing arts departments will present the first in a series of mini concerts. The presentations are being done in an attempt to bring some cultural offerings to the students and staff here at Lane.

Instant Theatre will begin at 3 p.m. in the library- a series of short acting vignettes and improvisations performed by advanced student actors. Students will work from suggestions made by the audience. This group is directed by ED RAGOZZINO, performing arts chairman.

In the future, the series will feature a Baroque Orchestra, the LCC Choir, other Instant Theatre Hours etc. Watch the Roundup for the time and topic of the next presentation.

MEETING DATE CHANGED

The Board of Education has changed its regular meeting dates from the first and third Wednesdays of the month to the second Wednesday. The Board will hold work sessions from time to time that will preclude formal action. These sessions are designed to give more of an informal exchange of ideas between staff members and the Board. Agendas will be developed for these sessions and the discussion will be limited to those items listed. Staff members are invited to attend and participate.

Names in the News

Dental Prof MARIE BELL was named Young Career Woman of the Year by the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. As a winner for Oregon, Marie attended the national convention in St. Louis, Mo. this summer.

CARL BLOOD, industrial technology chairman, is selling American flags through the Early Birds Kiwanis Club. Buy them for Christmas presents or for your own home. Carl is taking orders on Ext. 372.

JIM BROCK, instructional materials production specialist, reports that each of the LCC sponsored public convocations will be video-taped and made available for television viewing to staff and students on the Information Retrieval System. The first convocation, the Kinsolving-McBain debate will be available today through Wednesday.

RICHARD EYMANN, funding specialist, and LYLE SWETLAND, development director, attended a two-day workshop in Portland Oct. 16-17 on proposal writing. LCC intern ORLEY GUNDERSON also attended the workshop.

Superintendent of College Facilities BILL COX served as a member of an 11-man evaluating team at Everett Community College in Everett, Washington Oct. 13-15. The college was applying for its second accreditation, after first being accredited 10 years ago.

Bill evaluated the vocational technical fields at ECC. He reports that the college started with no vocational programs and is now growing faster in this area than in the academic fields.

Of the 11-man team, four were from Oregon, several were from Washington, one from Idaho and one from California.

MARY FIORENTINO, director of nursing, returned today from a series of meetings and workshops around the Northwest. Mary left Oct. 16 to attend a meeting of the National League of Nursing in Portland, followed by an accreditation meeting in Denver, Colorado. She attended a workshop in Pasadena, California and also had a meeting in San Diego.

Coordinator of Health Services ELLENE GOLD-SMITH spent the summer on a six-week tour of Europe. Ellene travelled to Iceland, England, Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy and France. She spent some of her time visiting hospitals and historical points of interest. She also spent the last two weeks of her tour in Lanipertim, Germany visiting her daughter and son-in-law, who is serving in the armed forces.

Business Prof MILLIE HARTSTROM will speak to business education seniors at the University of Oregon Oct. 31. She will be describing business education at the community college level.

FLORENCE HEDDEN, secretary to Dean CASE, and her husband EDWIN announce the marriage of their daughter SUE to CHARLES DARK, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dark of Eugene. The wedding took place Sept. 6 in the First United Methodist Church.

Health Prof DICK NEWELL, who is also a member of the Lane County Council on Alcoholism, was program chairman for the recent open house festivities at the Carlton House. The Carlton House is a halfway house for alcoholics who are trying to quit the habit.

ADRIAN VAALER, civil engineering prof, had several educational experiences during the summer. He attended three workshops on Education for retirement at the University of Oregon's department of Gerontology. Adrian also attended a computer training work session at Oregon State University the week before he returned to LCC to teach.

With weddings, travels, and educational experiences the summer was interesting and exciting for most LCC staff members. For the next few weeks the Roundup will feature summer experiences with various staffers.

'ROUND THE CAMPUS

Baseball player JACKIE ROBINSON will be a guest of the Inspiration Incorporated at South Eugene High School Oct. 30. Admission is free, however donations may be made to the Eugene Boys Athletic Association.

WANDA JONES, manager of the Business Office, resigned from her duties October 22. She left for personal reasons. Her resignation is effective immediately.

Two classrooms in the Center Building have been ruled unfit as regular classrooms and have been rescheduled to benefit students in a more useful way. Rooms 234 and 235, both outside rooms in the Center have an acoustics problem. Room 234 is now a tutorial center for students needing help with various studies. Room 235 is a multi-cultural center for all students with materials and information for their enrichment.

FINCH OUTLINES JUNIOR COLLEGE PLANS

The Nixon Administration has not forgotten its promise to give junior colleges top priority in its education program. That was the message HEW Secy. Robert H. Finch brought to a Washington, D.C., workshop on federal programs sponsored by the American Assn. of Junior Colleges (AAJC). Although there has been little obvious action since Finch first announced the junior college priority last February, he assured participants that the Administration is developing a "Comprehensive Community College Career Education Act of 1970." Finch explained that the Administration is moving slowly because it wants to explore carefully "some of the problems and prospects of this high potential institution." California, for example, has made mistakes with its large numbers of junior colleges that should not be repeated, Finch said. He added that the legislation must be "structured" correctly.

Finch stressed that the Administration does not want to create a nationally controlled community college system. And it wants junior colleges to maintain their individuality. "For this reason," Finch told the AAJC members, "as our own legislation takes form, we want your opinions in regional conferences we intend to hold, and we would welcome now your letters of advice directed to the Commissioner of Education." Finch expressed optimism that the legislation will be approved by Congress once it is developed because "the climate on the Hill couldn't be better."

The new legislation will propose that the community colleges "become the capstone institution for a career policy for all Americans," Finch said. His statement indicates that the Administration will be taking sides in the age-old argument about whether a junior college should teach a vocation or create transfer students for four-year colleges. Finch said he rejects junior colleges which are "a watered-down version of the senior college." He sees the community colleges as "career centers" which teach new technology, develop paraprofessionals, and offer continuing education for adults. "For black Americans," Finch said, "the public community college has the potential for becoming the most promising single avenue of higher education." Finch told the concerned educators that the federal government will try to help with construction costs, but he hinted that there will be no new money for the new legislation. He implied that it will be financed by reordering priorities and using existing funds from several government agencies, coordinated by a new Office of Community College and Career Education Programs in the U.S. Office of Education (USOE).

Another federal official said that institutions that intend to seek more federal funds for student aid will be asked what they are doing to recruit disadvantaged students. The official, Allen J. Vander-Staay, assistant director of USOE's Division of Financial Aid, added that the key issue in applications for work-study grants will be an institution's off-campus work programs. Paul H. Carnell, acting director of USOE's Division of College Support, suggested that junior colleges develop training programs for returning veterans since many are not taking advantage of their educational benefits under the GI Bill. Carnell also advised AAJC members to get more junior college expertise into the federal government at the program level where funding decisions are made. There is only one junior college authority in all of USOE, he said.
