Evaluation Team To Visit LCC

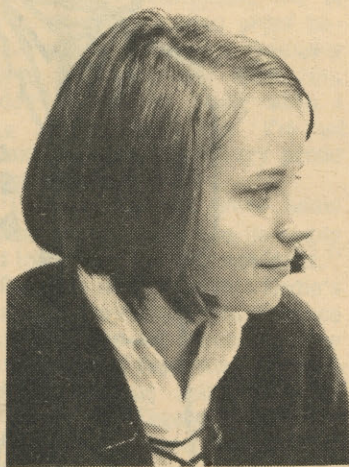

Evaluation of Lane Community College for accreditation by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools will take place next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Although the new campus may be helpful to Lane in the final decision, this evaluation is the final culmination of a long process which began as soon as the College was voted into existence in 1964. At this time the College applied for candidate status to become an accredited member of the Northwest Association. During March, 1966, a preliminary visit was made to the College by the President and the Executive Secretary of the Northwest Association. Lane Community College was approved by the Association as a candidate for accreditation on November 29, 1966, and, at that time, advised that it could proceed with the institutional self-study.

This program for institutional self-study involved all of the teaching faculty, administrators, and classified personnel at Lane in a concentrated study of every aspect of the College. The result of this in-depth study was the production of an institutional self-study report. The guidelines for this report were designed by the Northwest Association.

The purpose of creating this report is to give each member of the visiting team of evaluators a clear picture of Lane Community College. The team, selected by the Association, consists of 15 educators in higher education, eight of these members are affiliated with an accredited junior or community college and the remaining seven members are from four-year accredited colleges in the Northwest.

The function of the evaluating team is to make an independent analysis of Lane Community College as to the quality of its performance, effectiveness of its purpose, and adequacy of its resources for continuing and improving its performance. The team will also help the College identify its significant strengths and assist in solving its most critical problems, whether these be in the area of staff, course development, administration, finances, student activities, or any other aspects of the College. It is expected that the team members will be interviewing several faculty members and students in their evaluation. At the end of the three-day visit, the members of the team will present a written report to the staff of Lane and to make a recommendation to the Northwest Association concerning accreditation of Lane Community College.

During December 9-11 Dr. Hamill and Mr. Snow will receive accreditation status on the College at a meeting of the Northwest Association. The final decision is based on the evaluating report prepared by the visiting team. Up to this point the College has received provisional accreditation from the Association.

Cheerleaders May Make LCC History

By Linda Walton
Of The Torch

For the first time in the history of Lane Community College, cheerleaders may make the scene.

This history making event is still in paper form but may soon take the appearance of an actual event.

Chairman of the committee which "started the ball rolling" is Sandy Curtis. The committee obtained the fifty signatures required by student senate to elect a rally squad and immediately set about making petitions available to interested girls.

These petitions require the prospective yell leader to answer such questions as "What is school spirit?", and "How can spirit be maintained?". Other than completing this form no requirements have been set.

The petitions and girls will soon meet with the Student Senate where they will be evaluated. From there six sophomores and four freshman will be sent to try out in front of a specially assembled student body.

The voting will take place by secret ballot and from this two sophomores and two freshman will be elected. Also at this time will be the choosing of three yell kings. They will be required to follow much the same procedure as the girls.

Cheerleading duties this year will cover a wide range of responsibilities. They will serve as "handymen" for the coaches, the students ear in the athletic departments, as well as sponsoring dances and attending to their cheer leading duties.

It is planned that persons elected to this position will hold it for a maximum of two years. After which they will no longer be eligible to try out.

Financially speaking, it has as yet not been decided if a separate budget is to be set up for the yell squad or whether they will apply as a separate club under a school charter.

The final date for deciding this question and the selection of the cheerleaders has been set at October 31.

Drama Director Ed Ragazzino concentrates during last Tuesday's auditioning for "Stop the World."

Next week, a feature on the auditionees of Lane's first musical.

Noted Journalist To Speak at Lane

Roscoe Drummond, nationally known journalist and syndicated columnist, will speak in Eugene Oct. 21 at a Lane Community College forum. His topic is the "State of the Nation."

Drummond is to speak at Harris Hall in the Lane County Court House. Admission is free.

Considered one of the country's leading news interpreters, Drummond is noted for the independence and objectivity of his reporting. Widely respected among his fellow-newsmen, he reaches a large segment of the American public through his four-time weekly column "Washington", which appears in more than 100 newspapers from coast to coast.

Drummond, often called "Mr. Washington Correspondent", began his distinguished career in journalism as a staff reporter with the Christian Science Monitor in 1924. During the years he rose successively to assistant city editor, assistant to the executive editor, chief editorial writer, European editorial manager, general news editor and executive editor. During one of his assignments as Far Eastern correspondent for the Monitor, he made a grand journalistic tour of Asia.

Thoroughly acquainted with Europe also, he recorded on the spot many of the biggest news stories of the era. Among them are Hitler's rise to power and the decline of the League of Nations. He is also credited with many exclusives, one of the biggest being the story that General Eisenhower would seek the 1952 Republican nomination.

From 1949 to 1951 Drummond, on leave from the Monitor, served as European Director of Information for the Economic Cooperation Administration with headquarters in Paris. Here he utilized his extensive knowledge of Europe and the Far East in directing an important part of our psychological offensive during the cold war in Western Europe. He also had the opportunity, rare for a newsmen, to take part in the actual making of the news by participating in top-level government conferences.

After serving as head of the Monitor's Washington Bureau, Drummond joined the New York Herald Tribune in 1953 as Chief of its Washington Bureau and introduced his column, "Washington". Believed to represent the swiftest growth of any serious syndicated column, it expanded so rapidly that within 14 months he was relieved of his administrative duties so that he could devote full time to it.

A graduate of Syracuse University in 1924, Drummond holds the George Arents Award for excellence in journalism, awarded to Syracuse alumni for distinction in their professions. He has received an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from Dartmouth College and a Doctor of Human Laws from Principia College. A past president of the Overseas Writers Club, he is an officer of the National Press Club, Gridiron Club, and the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In addition to his newspaper work, Drummond has written articles for many leading national magazines and appears frequently on radio and television forum programs.

Political Posters

Torn From Buildings

This is a story of speculation. And maybe of suppression. We have received word that all campaign materials for state and national political candidates can not be displayed on campus.

If this is true, it seems that Lane Community College, "the open door" to learning, is changing. That open door sounds like it might be closed. That "open system" as Acting President Robert Hamill calls it, doesn't sound so open--if what we hear is true.

Packwood for U.S. Senate, and Morse for U.S. Senate posters have been torn from campus buildings.

With an average student body age of 26, who needs sheltering from the nasty world of politics? And it's our world too, Baby. We'd like to know what's going on.

At first we thought this commotion started with a memorandum from Acting President Bob Hamill, to all staff members. Hamill says the memorandum--concerning a letter from former LCC President, now State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Dale Parnell, requesting staff not wear Parnell campaign buttons at work because it is illegal--had nothing to do with the Packwood-Morse posters. He denied any knowledge of the action. Hamill assured us he intends on "keeping this (freedom of thought and expression) as open" as it has been.

Walt Van Orden, Plant Supervisor for the college, admitted taking down signs. He said "students don't realize the damage" done by tape on walls. He said signs are seldom taken down by those who put them up; he also said the tape is pulling paint of the walls, and in the case of brick or concrete surfaces, tape must be scraped or sand-blasted off.

"I don't feel we paid $ 16 million for a bulletin board," said Van Orden, and speaking of bulletin boards, one is being placed on the lower floor of the Health Building, temporarily.

"If we're going to do this," he said, "let's have the college go into the business and pay off our bonds."

So, the rumor is partially true. We will continue to be politically minded and aware. It is just a matter of where to display our material. The head master--Dr. Hamill--assured us he intends on keeping this freedom of thought as open as it has ever been.

Official Political Attitude?

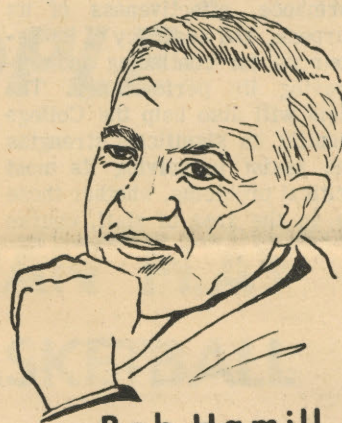

Creative Minds Needed

Attention all creative minded people! If you have the least little sparkle of creativity in your fingers and a zest for show biz in your blood, report to room 102 in the music section at 11:00 on Thursday, October 17. Next Thursday will be a great opportunity for anyone who loves the stage but is too timid to set foot on it. Or anyone who is looking for a chance to try out their creative talents.

A chairman and committee is needed for the production staff of "Stop The World" for each of the following categories: 1. Box office (Handling of phone reservations, tickets, etc.) 2. Costume mistress and/or designer (or anyone else who would like to submit original creations. 3. Make-up designer 4. House manager (Handles ushers, ticket takers and is general all-around boss) 5. Program chairman (for printed programs) 6. Stage crew (painting, constructing and setting up sets) 7. Sound 8. Lights

Therefore, if you enjoy being in the center of the hustle and bustle of putting on a play, please be at the meeting, as there is plenty of work to be done and a spot for everyone.

Officer Issuing Tickets

Have you noticed a little pink ticket on your windshield lately? If so, you've probably asked yourself, why me? The man for you to question is Mr. Wally Rowland, head of L.C.C. security department.

Mr. Rowland feels that working here at Lane is much the same for him, as the past 20 years of active duty on the police force. Wally, as he is better known, is still working with people and their problems.

Many of us have seen him in the last two weeks, distributing traffic and parking reminders throughout parking areas. More common violations have been: no bumper sticker, backing into parking spaces, and improper parking between yellow lines.

Due to the fact that parking regulations were not published previous to the opening of school, many students have been and are unaware of their violations.

Traffic and parking manuals are now available for those wishing them, in the registrars office. Mr. Rowland began passing out official tickets Oct. 11 for parking in disabled persons and visitors zones.

Rowland talked about our campus and the new facilities available. His sense of pride and appreciation was much like that of many students attending Lane this year. He only wishes that each student could feel this way, helping instead of hindering.

President Extends Welcome

To those of you who are new to LCC and those of you who are returning, I wish to extend a very warm welcome. You have come in greater numbers and with more enthusiasm than we ever had anticipated.

As I have wandered around the campus these last two weeks and listened to conversations of students as well as staff members, I have been extremely pleased with the enthusiasm for our new campus--even in its present state of incompleteness. It is truly a tribute to the foresight and goodwill of students and staff alike that I have not heard one bit of serious grumbling. We will all be happy when the sidewalks are finished, when traffic bottlenecks are finished, and when carpenters leave our study and class areas; and I assure you that everything is being done that can possible be done to speed those processes along.

I have been given the opportunity to carry on Dr. Parnell's practice of a President's column in each of the issues of the Torch. I should like to use that column to discuss with you issues of importance. I am sure this practice will be much more valuable if you, as students, will let me know from time to time what questions you would have me discuss.

In the meantime, try to keep your feet dry and your feelings calm, and I'll work on a proclamation declaring you all "Pioneers First Class."

BAILLES OLYMPIC BOUND

LCC-IP--How does it feel to be married to the world's fastest female?

For Eddie Bailes, an LCC custodian whose wife, Margaret, is Summer Olympics bound, there is only one way to describe it. "Slow, really slow."

Mrs. Bailes earned a long hoped-for trip to the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, with a victory in the 200 meters at the Olympic qualifying finals, August 23, in California. Margaret won the event with her best-ever time of 23.5 seconds. The next night she doubled her Olympic berth to include the 100 meter race with a second place clocking of 11.3 seconds.

Earlier in the month she had tied the world record in the 100 meters at the AAU championships in Colorado.

It would be very easy for Eddie Bailes to thrive on his wife's success. "She is my wife and she wears my name; how and what she does is a reflection on me," says Eddie. "Margaret's races give me just about as much excitement as she feels."

Eddie, 24, says his wife is a much better runner than she thinks she is. Margaret, at 17, "never knows, or believes that she has won a race until she reaches the tape. I think she knows she has the potential, but she never gets too overly confident," Eddie said.

Bailes said he was not an avid track fan before he and Margaret met. "I didn't not-like it, I just didn't pay attention," Eddie played basketball while in the Air Force, but not against outside competition.

"I didn't even know that Margaret was so interested in running. Her ability was not too well known when we met, because even though I knew she enjoyed track, she just wasn't that good then."

Margaret lost her coach just after they were married in 1967 and it was then that Eddie really became excited and interested in Margaret's races. "I helped her train and tried to advise her when she needed it. I didn't know too much, but we worked out together two to four hours a day. I would start her for timings and I ran with her too."

He has never outrun her in any sprints, "but I can last longer than she can in distance. Besides it isn't as hard for me to catch her as it is for her competitors because I'm her husband."

"I don't really think Margaret's running is a disadvantage because through her not being here all the time, I have learned to cook and wait on myself. I enjoy putting around the house, but I like to have her there too. She is a lot better cook."

Whenever he can, Eddie works at part-time jobs on weekends and evenings. "As soon as I can get my financial situation built up, I want to continue my classes in Data Processing. The jobs take up my spare time and that way I don't miss Margaret so much."

Because of the expense of traveling and also because of his job, he doesn't get to see Margaret run very often, but Eddie says, "I did get to see the race that gave her the confidence she needed to win the AAU and the Olympic Trials."

"During the last part of July we spent our vacation in San Mateo, where Margaret ran in the semi-finals of the Olympic Trials. San Mateo is near my hometown of Oakland so while visiting with my parents, we went down to the high school track to practice. Margaret's coach couldn't go to San Mateo because he was moving and her new coach could only help her part-time. I was helping her practice her starts, and a group of high school boys were watching us."

After a hour or so, this one boy sent a little kid over to where we were to say the older boy wanted to race with Margaret. She didn't want to race with him because she didn't think she could beat him, so she told him no. I talked her into it because they had been making cracks about her running and I knew she could win.

Well, she finally said okay, and they got ready and I set them off. Margaret beat him easily, but he said it wasn't fair because she was wearing track shoes.

He left and came back later wearing his track shoes and asked her to run again. She thought the shoes were the only reason she won, too, so at first she said no again. When she gave in to the rematch, we lined them up and I started them. This time she beat him by a full stride. She was really kinda surprised because she had doubted whether she could beat him with track shoes."

Margaret went on to qualify for the finals, won the 200 meter and placed in the 100 meters and now she's on her way to the Olympics.

"Margaret is a lot better than she thinks. She is going to Mexico City to prove to herself and her friends that she has the ability to run like a champion, but in my mind I don't need proof because to me she was a champion before she knew she could run. I don't mean to boast when I talk about her, but I'm not ashamed to say I'm very proud of my wife."

"I just wish she were home so the house wouldn't be so empty and lonely and our dog would eat."

There is little hope that Eddie's two wishes will come true, because Margaret had to report to New Mexico in mid September for high altitude training and she won't be home in Eugene until the Olympics are over, the last of October.

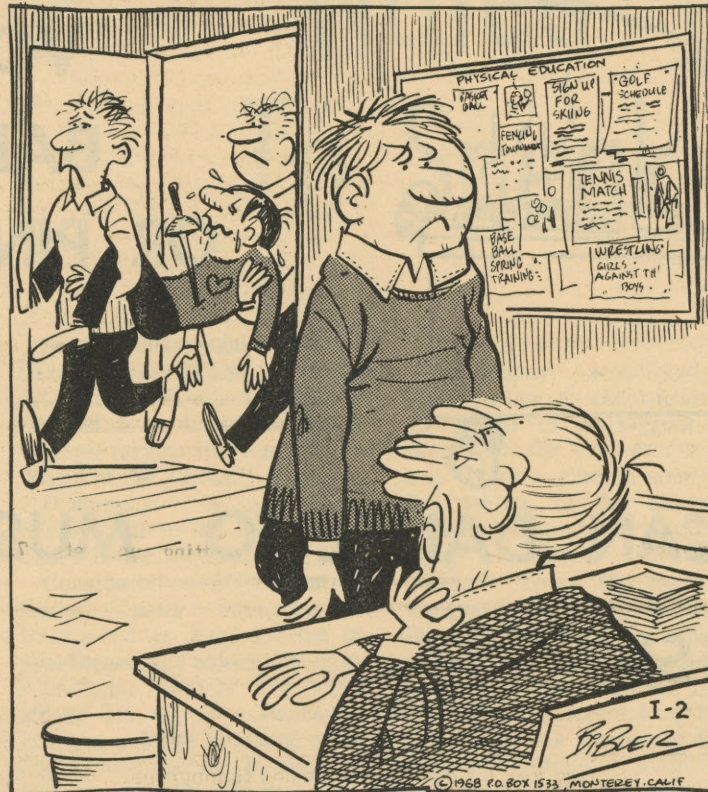

Production Staff Needed

According to Ed Ragozzino, Drama Instructor, anyone interested in being on the production staff for the show "Stop The World" should meet in room 102 in the Music Building at 11:30 on Thursday, October 17.

Food Preparation Course Offered

A significant, but perhaps little known about, segment of Lane's vast complex is the Food Center.

It has been a course offered LCC since last December and specializes in training students in the art of food preparation.

Merlin Ames, director of the Center, figures an average of 600 students a day have been served since classes took up in September. He was informed that upon completion of the campus buildings the Food Center will occupy the majority of the main floor in the LRC building.

As for the food! Anything from hot rolls to savory ham, combined with a relaxed atmosphere may be found there. It is presently located in the temporary classrooms set up just east of the Machine Tech. Building.

Flag Football

To Begin Soon

For those interested in playing flag football, LCC will have an intramural program.

Anyone interested in playing or officiating should attend the meeting Oct. 15 at 4:00 in the main gym.

Two eight-team leagues will be organized to start October 24, and continue until December 5. All games will be played on Thursdays at 4:00 or 5:00 p.m., except Thanksgiving week.

Students will organize their own teams, but all participants must be LCC students. There will be no boundaries on the field. Names of the teams and players on the teams must be filed with the director of intramurals by October 17.

All men interested should organize teams and contact the intramurals office in the Health Building immediately.

Any questions or suggestions about flag football should be addressed to Mel Krause. His office is in the Health Building.

Parnell named consultant

Former Lane College President Dale Parnell has been appointed by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation as a consultant to new community colleges being organized around the country.

He attended a briefing session with other consultants in Washington, D. C., in June. Then he offered organizational assistance to the new Charles County Community College at La Plata, Md., on June 17 and 18.

The Kellogg Foundation, of Battle Creek, Michigan has committed $242,000 to the American Association of Junior Colleges to underwrite programs designed to strengthen community college education.

2 Given Scholarships

Steve Waibel, 19, of Hillsboro, and Mike Van Dyke, 21, of Verboort, have won $125 scholarships to attend the second-term farm equipment repair program this fall at Lane.

They were chosen by graduating students as the outstanding first year students in the program this past year. Underwriting the scholarships is the Northwest Implement and Hardware Dealers Association.

Waibel is a 1967 graduate of Hillsboro High School. Van Dyke graduated from Forest Grove Union High School in 1966.

School Truck Smashed

An LCC-owned panel truck was damaged in an accident with a sports car in downtown Eugene, Monday, September 16.

Richard Mosley, driver of the panel and a Lane student, was hospitalized with head lacerations and an injured vertebra; he was released a short time later from Sacred Heart Hospital. He was employed by the college at the time of the accident.

A passenger in the sports car driven by Rande Duclos of Eugene, Michail K. Gowins, received out-patient treatment and was released.

Duclos was cited by Eugene police on the charge of failure to yield right of way.
