

Pickering Named LCC President

A people-centered man with a keen interest in vocational education becomes president of Lane Community College on July 1. He brings 18 years experience in educational administration, teaching and counseling.

Robert Lance Pickering, 38, of Phoenix, Ariz., was named by the LCC Board of Education Tuesday to succeed Robert Hamill, who has been acting president since Dale Parnell left last July to become state superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Pickering, chosen from 250 applicants for the LCC presidency, since 1966 has been director of "Designing Education for the Future." Representing the Arizona State Department of Public Instruction, he heads a eight-state effort in the rocky mountain region to anticipate changes in American society and relate education to them.

He also currently has a private psychology practice and is president of the Arizona College Foundation, a new-college planning group.

Contacted by telephone, Dr. Pickering praised LCC's present and potential. "There's no question in my mind but that this is a unique, inspiring and exciting institution. It captivates the imagination and shows what can be done at an educational institution designed for the people."

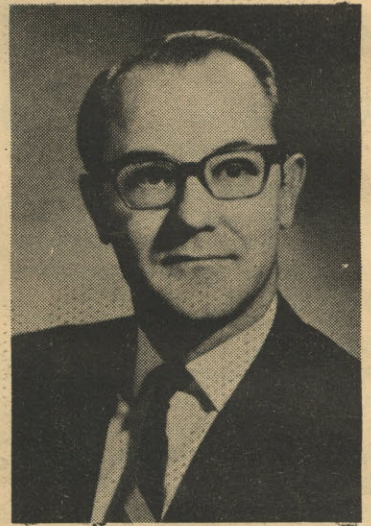

He visited the LCC campus April 18 and 19 and expects to be back on campus May 9 and 10 for the Oregon Community College Association Convention.

Dr. Pickering was dean of students at Indiana Institute of Technology from 1962-64, assistant to the director of registration at the University of Michigan from 1958-61, dean of men at Kings College in New York from 1956-58, was once a teacher, track-basketball coach at Northwestern College at Minneapolis from 1951-54.

He received a doctorate in student personnel administration and higher education from Columbia University in 1960 and earned bachelors and masters degrees at the University of Minnesota in 1953 and 1954.

He has been a regional and national consultant to a host of educational, psychological and business groups and has published widely in educational periodicals.

The Freedoms Foundation cited him in 1966 for his work on a guide for encouraging patriotism in the Arizona public schools. A Baptist church school teacher, he has been active in the Phoenix Mayor's Task Force, YMCA, Kiwanis, and Governor's Prayer Breakfast Committee.

Nosbisch Proposes Student Body Fee

BY NITA SANDER

Paul Nosbisch, vice president of OCCSA, presented a $2 per term student body fee proposal to the President's Cabinet Tuesday April 23.

The proposal had been discussed in the Student Senate meeting and had passed with only one opposing vote.

Nosbisch said the proposal was made because of need for another source of revenue. "Student Senate has only one source of revenue -- the bookstore and the vending machines. Next year," said Nosbisch, "we will be getting the same amount from the bookstore but only about one third as much from the vending machines." Nosbisch said this was because the LRC Food Center would draw most of the money that now is going to the machines. Nosbisch also said that "the student body will grow by about 20% and will be demanding more activities."

According to Nosbisch the Student Senate, which operated with approximately $21,000 this year, will have about $13,000 to work with next year if this proposal isn't passed. Nosbisch said that this would mean "no yearbook, a cut in athletics, and the activities will be about the same -- which wasn't much." He said he could see no other way of raising money.

The proposal has been directed to an ad hoc committee of three staff members and three students to study alternatives. Nosbisch said that they hadn't come up with anything yet except, "to cut the activities program or to operate within the $13,000 budget -- and neither one are in the interest of the student body." The committee will make its report to the Cabinet today.

Mike Bingham, social science senator, was the opposing vote in the Senate meeting. He stated his reasons for opposing as, "The student body fees notoriously start out small and notoriously end up big." Bingham also said he objected "to doing something this year for the students next year who have no say in it.

"This thing is being done over the heads of the student body on the Board level. Therefore, the Student Senate is not truly representative of the student body."

Bingham said that when the college was first set up it was stated that there would never be student body fees. "The philosophy of the college is that all people can go to college," said Bingham. He said that the fees would be adding to the low tuition the college tries to maintain.

Nosbisch argued that this idea was never stated as a rule and that LCC was the only community college in Oregon that doesn't have fees.

The decision will be made by the Board who will consider the recommendations of the Cabinet after the committee report.

Choral Director Resigns

Robert Norman, choral director, has resigned. His resignation was effective following the Annual Spring Choir Concert Friday.

After the concert Norman was presented with a gift and "best wishes" from the members of the choir and The New Lane Singers, some of whom he had known for the past couple of years.

Norman has been choral director at Lane for the past three years. Before coming to Lane he taught music at Santa Fe Springs, sixth through eighth grades, at Torrance, Calif., and had taught English and journalism in Tacoma, Wash.

He is leaving Lane to become part-owner and advertising manager of "From The Stables," a Eugene area publication for horse owners.

Student Senate Needs More Money To Waste

BY GARY COX

From the beginning of the year, most ASB students have said, let the Student Senate play, just as long as they stay out of my way. The Student Senate was safe as long as it didn't directly affect the student body. Well, now they have directly influenced the student body. Paul Nosbisch, in a blinding display of intelligence, says the Student Senate must have more money to waste because he can see no way of raising money without it. Without pausing even a moment to try to find evidence of money spent, I'll simply ask why Lane College can't make money the way any other Student Union raises the money? Instead of blowing money on a sock hop, that money plus the money spent for the Heart Hop could have made the down payment on a concert by Jimi Hendricks. It only takes a thousand students, some floor mats, and a giant gym to make the student body some five to seven thousand dollars.

If we were to examine the Student Senate budget, we would ask why $3,373.92 was spent on athletics when the exaggerated student attendance at any one game was 250 to 300 persons. The Student Senate spent a grand total of $6,847.13 on such things as a Fall Bar-B-Que which some 250 persons attended, a fall dance (75 couples) a winter activity(?), a Titan yearbook which never came out, a student handbook, student activities (?), blazers for the officers, and publications for the Senate. Why does the Student Senate need more money? So the members can hold more of these farcial activities, buy themselves more blazers and attend more conventions where they are obviously unable to learn anything? Is it the student's fault for not enjoying these bountiful activities which are designed to entertain, stimulate and encourage them, or is it the Senate's fault for not promoting student instigated, organized and controlled activities? In my opinion the Senate is at fault since it didn't relate to the average student (who, by the way, is near 25 years old -- can you imagine asking a 25 year old secretarial major to the "Heart Hop"? Oh, groovy!).

The childish bumpkins on the Student Senate squander away $12,561.48 on stuff that obviously didn't instill in the student any trust or interest in the student government which supposedly represents his interests, ambitions and attitudes. I say obviously since roughly 300 persons voted in the last student government elections.

Why all this apathy -- or is it apathy? Should the student government be relevant to the student body or should the student body be forced to be relevant to the student government? The Student Senate obviously doesn't have a very realistic idea of what the student body is. It should have recognized that Lane is a commuter college, with a very wide spectrum of students. Therefore, activities should have related to the community and to this wide spectrum of students. How can the Student Senate even begin to think that a "Heart Hop," "Soc Hop," and a "Slave Sale" will relate to intelligent students whose average age is 25? We quit having soc hops and the like in Junior High. Maybe that's where the Student Senate is at. The argument that says student apathy is the cause is nonsense. Students care about things that relate to them (draft, campus "disruptions," the war, the 18-year-old vote, the Vinalle Fudge, etc.) but the student government does not relate to them -- so why should students care about it? The real tragedy is that the student council is affecting them by spending student money irresponsibly and then asking for more. Half of the student body (the freshman half) didn't even vote for these "elected officials." The elections are held in the fall before freshmen are even freshmen. How can a two-year college have this kind of election? Perpetually, unless this is changed, half of the student population will automatically not relate to the student government since they didn't even have the chance to vote for their officials. It is unethical to ask a student to participate in a system that only pretends to address their needs but in actual fact, at best, is subversive to them -- subversive in their disrespect for student money, their lack of relativity which is the direct cause of student contempt for them, which in turn undermines student moral? The Student Senate has robbed the student body of the fresh, invigorating atmosphere of the academic community with its "non-existence."

The real tragedy is that this student government has so undermined the normal student respect for its governing body that the students refused to participate in the farce as was evidenced in the last elections. (The former staff of the TORCH was partly responsible since they took the same attitude as most of the students...forget 'em. If things aren't going to get prospectively worse, the newly "elected officials" should realize that they can't start off their reign "on the wrong foot." With three to four per cent of the student body participating in the last election the new student government doesn't have a mandate from the students to exist at all. There is, however, no provision in the constitution which takes account of this. (Isn't that nice?)

The new government will take office in May. On May 2 a recall petition should be initiated, together with a referendum which would call for elections to be held in the spring, and those elected in the recall to service until spring. This is the only way the elected officials can feel responsible elected. If the people Cont. to pg. 4

Narcotics

In Eugene Schools

BY WILLIAM
T. ERICKSON

Just recently a series of three articles concerning the drug problem in the Eugene high schools has appeared in the Eugene Register-Guard.

The EEA (Eugene Educational Association) has formed a task force to fight the growing problem of drug usage in the high schools and even in some junior high schools. Apparently the EEA hopes to serve as a catalyst for other agencies in this area. Whether or not this task force will meet with success remains to be seen. The fight against this problem will only be won when parents and students become aware of the extreme danger of drug usage and decide to do something about it.

It is too bad when students still feel the need to seek even bigger thrills in the use of drugs, just so they will be considered one of the "in" group.

Too many parents are ignoring the problem and are not too concerned because it is happening to someone else; but when it happens to one of their kids they become enraged and demand to know why something is not being done about the drug problem.

Well, parents, the schools are doing what they can by having active educational programs about narcotics, assemblies, movies and even lectures in health classes.

The police force is doing what it can by arresting the pushers, breaking up pot parties and catching young kids in possession of the drugs.

The actions of these two agencies still has not stopped the use of narcotics in the schools. Narcotics are even being used by students in our colleges and universities. The law of averages would even suggest that even Lane Community College has been touched by the so called drug bug.

The problem must be stopped before it has a chance to get a start and the answer lies in the home and on the shoulders of the parents.

Attention All Left Handed Students

The Student Senate, omnipotent source of righteousness at Lane Community College, demonstrated typical naivete in refusing to put two proposed amendments to the constitution before the student body. These amendments would eliminate the possibility of groups that practice racial discrimination on campus.

Left-handers, the road is now clear to rise up against the right-handed oppressors! These racist pig right-handers that have so long kept the left-handers relegated to the yoke of slavery must be overthrown.

From now on things will be different on this campus or else! We make the following demands for reform:

1. All people will shake hands with their left hands on this campus.
2. All textbooks on this campus will read from back to front.
3. All implements such as scissors, staplers, paper cutters, etc. will be purchased with the left-hander in mind.
4. Any right-handed person caught violating these demands or attempting to discriminate against a left-handed person shall appear before a tribunal consisting of left-handers.

To aid in seeing these just and fair proposals through, I propose the establishment of a Left-Handed Student's Union. The membership will include right-handers, but they will be subject to higher dues and will have no vote. Ambidextrous will be treated as equals and will have a vote but cannot be members of the executive cabinet.

In closing I suggest that all left-handers purchase a gun for their own protection. (I also demand that all gun stores stock left-handed guns.) Remember, a right-handed pig will stoop to anything to keep you down. But you must keep your dignity as a human being and descend the minority that has helped to improve civilization so much. If a right-handed person steps on you, kill him!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The Campus Planning Committee, asking us all to vote on the proposition of keeping or junking a sculpture by Harold Hoy, has insulted the taste and intelligence of the artist and the students. Mr. Hoy donated the sculpture to Lane Community College and now Lane College says, "Well, it sure is pretty but I don't understand it and I don't know if it's worth the trouble and maybe we should let the students decide."

If the public was asked to vote on Michaelangelo's statue of David, we wouldn't enjoy it today. The public doesn't necessarily, when called upon, go out of its way to voice favorable opinion. In the days of Michaelangelo this wasn't any different. "Mich was a far out cat y'understand," and only those who happened to have the intellectual foresight required saw the value in Mich's works; one of those men happened to be the Pope. It's regrettable that Bill Cox who proposed the vote, doesn't have the same intellectual foresight and artistic sense that the Pope had. It would seem, at casual glance, that this Planning Committee can't make up its own mind on the matter and would rather "wash its hands of the judgement and let the people decide on the fate of this remarkable work." A work of art would be something that instills in us some kind of esthetic involvement with what would normally be just painted metal. It's not done to necessarily please our senses, so how can one vote on whether or not it should exist?

If this was how it is, art would never progress and would never have progressed.

This campus is designed in a progressive manner and Harold Hoy's sculpture reflects and compliments the powerful angular mode the campus is designed in. It's remarkable that the Committee can't understand that and then fall all over itself accepting it gratefully. Well...that's the way the old forum falls.

A Vote For

Higher Taxes

Dear Editor,

We believe that property taxes and income taxes should be raised, sales and city taxes enacted, and the tuition be raised so the school can waste more money. Some examples that were currently observed:

- 1) More catapillar-yellow art creations. (cast in metal for more cost)
 - 2) Leaving lights on 24 hours a day, and leaving doors open with the heaters turned up.
 - 3) More TV cameras--the Forum building had a single room which had three TV cameras in it.
 - 4) More flag-poles. Throw up a few more and we can call this place the United Nations.

Black Are Excluded From White System

Students: The BSU needs a permanent on campus. Why? Constitution of the BSU -- Article II, Section I A: To foster the growth of and assimilation of black culture contribution to the society. B: To engage in the study of black history and life.

During the past two months I have come to believe there is a genuine concern from Lane County to include the blacks, but its institutions still exclude blacks from the system when they propose million dollar budgets to the community. The country has become aware of the need to include the black man into the main stream of American society. The first most basic place to start is in education, "our schools" or should I say, "your schools."

Yes, your schools which practice institutionalized racism. I have to exclude the majority of people in Lane County whom I believe are sincere about their desire to include everyone. This includes Indians, Mexican Americans, blacks etc. Lane Community College must be relevant to the needs of the community. To include everyone means to take into account the blacks too. We are here, we aren't going back to Africa no matter how the bureaucratic system tries to exclude us. We have more faith in the American people than to let these barricades stop us from demanding what is ours, "the people."

It is not hard for me to believe, Dean Cox (the man who controls the rooms) that you forgot the black people and the current events in our country, towards black participation, and awareness by whites to communicate. If Lane Community College had a Black Studies Departments we (students) would not have to concern ourselves, or have to come begging for closet space or for an information desk for the students and LCC and the community. The BSU cannot get off the ground until we are accepted. The blacks on campus should be encouraged to participate and not discouraged by a minority of unconcerned, unaware white students.

Dean Cox, if you would come out of your roomy office, walk over to the student center, and talk to some of the students with all your degrees and experience could combine the two to become more "intuned" to education, students and the needs of the community. You might contact some of the high schools and ask if there is a concern by students to find out more about black culture. I guess we black students will just have to wait until Dean Cox decides to accept us, but we must go to school "today!"

I am sure that if Dean Cox ever becomes aware of the situation of the black man in this country he (a good cristian) would only be too happy to share his office with the BSU.

Career Institute Begins Thursday

The Career Institute will begin at 9:25 a.m. May 1, with a general orientation session in the main gym. At 9:30 a.m. the students will attend the first of the separate sessions, at which representatives from business and labor organizations will talk with students and discuss the various aspects of jobs and business according to each student's interest.

The business and professional men will identify themselves and the company represented at the separate presentations during the many sessions throughout the two days. They will explain present and anticipated future needs of their business and/or industry in personnel. They will cover entry levels and limitations, both promotional and salary, encountered at various levels of education, training and experience. They will also cover what their companies expect from employees in the way of attitudes. Time will be allowed the students to ask questions. If time allows, the different business and professional representatives may go into the relative supply and demand situation as found in various local, state wide and national location...according to job types.

Placement Director, Buck Bailey, said that around 5,000 high school students are expected to attend the Career Institute.

Career check lists have been sent to various schools throughout the Lane County area. Each student attending the career institute has chosen five areas to attend from the following: administration, business, education, biological science, physical science, service, agriculture and outdoor work, art, social service communication and transportation.

Bailey said that four sessions; two each morning and two each afternoon, will be held on the fourth floor of the new Learning Research Center Building.

"The Rotary Club has been involved in the Career Institute for the past 15 or 16 years and it has been getting bigger each year," said Bailey. "LCC was selected as the logical place to hold the Career Institute, because it is centrally located in the Lane County area."

The Career Institute is to last for two days, May 1 and 2.

Bill and Cindy Wooten, owners and managers of The Odyssey Coffee House, have announced the beginning of a "free school" in the area.

The school is to be set up for anyone in the community that wants another chance at education. The Wootens and various other persons in the community have taken on the job of organizing the program from scratch by first setting up weekly seminars in The Odyssey Coffee House at 713 Willamette in Eugene. The seminars are for anyone who has shown an interest in the program or who would like to join. There will be discussions on what a free school is, how, when, and where it will be set up; and the beginning of sign up.

Sixty people have already signed up with little or no announcement of the program so far. The weekly seminars will last until June when regular classes will begin.

The suggested program will consist of three main sections: a tutorial program, humanities, and arts.

The tutorial program would offer "drop-outs" or "kick-outs" any classes they need to make up for graduation.

Humanities will include a subject curriculum of philosophy, history, literature or any other course that the individual may want to take, and a problem curriculum which will be determined by the needs of the participants. A few points suggested for the problem curriculum were: U.S. Foreign Policy and the war in Viet Nam, youth and authority, race relations, local economy, family and interpersonal relations, and sensitivity and encounter groups.

The third point in the program, arts, will include handicrafts, pottery, painting, sculpture, theater and film workshops, and music.

The program is primarily orientated toward high school and junior high school students, but it is open to anyone--and all viewpoints.

The idea, the group said, is to get people to learn by their own efforts. It's orientated toward freedom--know the truth and the truth shall make you free.

The group has discussed many reasons for the establishment of the free school but the main one is the failure of the public school. The failures are listed as: not accomodating itself to the concepts of a pluralistic society, an avoidance of controversy, an excess of emphasis on obedience and servility rather than responsibility and decision making; the result being that it turns off rather than on the potentially creative students.

The aims of the free school, a demonstration of an alternative method or system of education, are listed as: no age group segregation (diminish peer group influence and remain close to the natural form of society), no clear cut demarcation between teachers and students (all are learners), a seminar method of instruction to involve all participants with no grade or exam pressures--problem orientation keeps theory closer to practice, an education that gears to life and the needs of the people not to labor, enabling people to benefit from the university education as a result of free experience (because of group participation and the experience of working together).

Future plans are to establish an adult education program in the community and to attempt to restore community self-reliance on questions of social judgement, a capacity which now is monopolized by the media. If the program succeeds, it may become a private school in time to come.

All instructors will be volunteers, and already some have volunteered from the U of O. Anyone that has a knowledge of a certain subject will be eligible for teaching that class.

For further information the Wootens can be reached at The Odyssey Coffee House at 713 Willamette Street in Eugene.

New Record Releases Hit The Stands

New releases for the past couple of weeks have been fairly skimpy but the records that have been released are of fairly high quality.

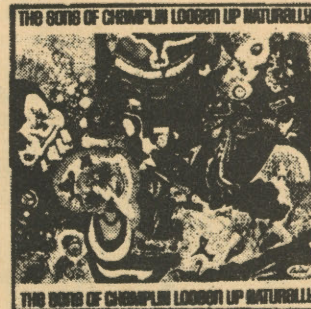

The new Procol Harum -- A SALTY DAY -- continues the overall sound quality characteristic of Procol Harum and some of the lyrics are quite pointed.

The new album by Sandy Bull, who plays all the parts of what amounts to an electric string band, E Pluribus Union is one of the finest and stoniest records of the year. The album contains two 17 minute tracks which amount to electric string quartets. A very worthwhile record.

Leigh Stephens, who used to be lead guitarist for Blue Cheer, has a new record, RED WEATHER, which far surpasses anything he did for Blue Cheer, which is not only to be hoped for but ardently desired. Stephen is backed, attractively, by the usual Philips Records A & R.

The release of the new Bob Dylan is of course the event of the year and is representative of the best of Dylan or as the slick mag jags say, a must.

An original S.F. sound group has released their first on Capitol after a wait of several years. Sons of Champlin, the group has a two album for the price of one set, LOOSEN UP NATURALLY, which is one of the most danceable records to arrive for a long time. The group has the usual string, drum composition with horns. It's all done very well.

JB-A Way Of Life

BY PEGGY DENNISTON

"Ruth, a little more blue on J.B." "The woman scene is dragging, pick it up girls. Get mad, laugh, be coarse. You're too nice."

It's a rehearsal of "J.B.", the Performing Arts Department's next drama production which will open Thursday night.

As one of the cast, the voice giving instructions is very familiar to me by now. It is Mr. Ed Ragazzino, head of the Performing Arts Department. It certainly isn't as intimidating as it was at the end of last term when I sat in tryouts with many other fellow students. Then, as Mr. Ragazzino sat at the front of the Forum and explained the play and the tryout process, I sat in a seat, quaking with fear at what was ahead of me. I had wanted for many years to become involved in drama, but for many reasons I had not. I finally had gathered enough courage to try out for "J.B.", but as I sat in the Forum I began to wonder if I was just there to make a fool of myself. As I looked around the room I saw many faces familiar to me from the cast of "Stop the World", and felt even more intimidated and out of place than I had before.

In reviewing these feelings of trepidation, I have come to the conclusion that nearly everyone feels them when they are trying out for any type of drama production. Even those who have tried out for many, many plays still have the horrible fear that they too will not be cast. In this, my first attempt, I was fortunate to be cast in a small part.

Rehearsals have now become a way of life, and I can now understand why people believe that Mr. Ragazzino is such a good director. It comes from instilling in those who are acting for him the desire to do the best they possible can; and if something is not good enough for him he makes you want to go out and search for your own individual answer.

Rehearsals are not easy. They are time consuming and exacting. When you have done a scene two or three times and are called to do it again you feel like saying, "Go to hell!" Instead you bite your lip and try to regain the characterization that you want. This is particularly difficult in a play which deals with death and living in the way in which "J.B." does. However, when you go home from a rehearsal knowing that you have done a good job, the feelings that you have make all the frustration, time, and energy worthwhile.

"J.B." is the first play I have been in, but it won't be the last. I'm addicted to drama. The parts I play may always be small, I may try out and not get a part at all, but there is always publicity and makeup and lighting.

who were "elected" are ethical politicians they will instigate the recall themselves and run again, addressing themselves to the real problems that face their offices and the student government. They will have to realize that Lane is a commuter college, a two-year college, and an institute which is goal oriented due to its emphasis on vocational technology, adult education, etc. They, if they indeed are ethical, will realize that they don't have a mandate from the students and that they shouldn't want to run a government as irresponsible as the one presently in office. Starting off with such a low voting turnout (three to four per cent of the student government) they will have no other choice unless they accept the recall and, with the help of THE TORCH, get down to the student and off their clouds. The winds are blowing down below.

LCC Flags Fly At Half Mast

The custom of flying the flag at half mast during a period of mourning comes from the year 1627 and although it may seem strange, the flying of the flag at half mast was done by the military in the striking of colors at surrender.

Both the State and National flags still remain at half mast in remembrance of President Eisenhower.

The flags in front of LCC both the state and country, have now flown at half mast for the better than 30 days in honor of the late President Eisenhower. He would have been honored the same way if he had never been a president. He won this right by being one of the great generals of World War II.

There is no rule in the flying of the flag that pertains to flying the flag for 30 days after a dignitary's death. But there is one rule stating that the flag should be flown at half mast until the funeral is over. Any honorable discharged ex-service man can be so honored. The layman can be so honored. The flying of the flag at half mast for 30 days is by presidential decree, and is usually given to all great statesmen of this country, especially when they die in office.

ASB To Hold

Vote On

Proposal

According to Jack Whisenhunt, a student senator for the Technology Department, the Student Senate will hold a vote May 12. The vote is for student participation in a proposal already in an ad hoc committee which stemmed from the President's Cabinet.

The vote is to decide whether or not the students will pay a student body fee of $2 per term, starting next fall.

Whisenhunt said the vote was being held in behalf of the administration, as, he said, "They asked us to hold it." Whisenhunt also said that, "We want to make it as educational a thing as possible."

Five Senator-at-Large positions are open. Applications for these positions can be obtained in Jack Carter's office in the Health Building. After receiving these applications another vote will be held at which time there will be some constitution amendments to be voted on.

There is a planned convocation or general meeting for installation and charging of all Associated Student Body officers and Student Senate for '69 - '70. Attendance is recommended for meeting and being aware of the plans and goals of the new officers.
