McNeale wins national cross country title

Neither rain nor snow, nor sleet nor hail could stop Lane Community College's Jan McNeale at the National Junior College Cross Country Championships Saturday at Butler, Pennsylvania, 45 miles north of Pittsburgh.

McNeale, an unbeaten sophomore, conquered the hilly 4.175 mile snow-covered course and withstood the chilly 20 degree temperature as he ran away from a field of 283 runners, representing 31 states, to capture the individual cross-country title.

The Titans, making their first trip to the nationals, finished seventh. Team honors went to Vincennes, Indiana Community College.

McNeale finished 15 yards ahead of his nearest competitor in winning his seventh consecutive race of the season. Lane's Hugh Helikson also won all American honors with his 11th place finish.

Titan runner Don Herrman finished 40th, Bob Wynkoop 51st and Gaylen Littlejohn, running with a spike wound which required seven stitches after the race, placed 77th. John McCray, suffering from a cold, withdrew at the two-mile mark.

"Jan started right out with them and after the first half mile, was up with the leaders," said Titan Coach Al Tarpenning.

"Jan took the lead going into the third mile, gave it up, and then with 550 yards to go kicked in and overtook three runners ahead of him.

"He said he felt real good with 500 yards left because there was a slight uphill and that is where he is strong.

"I was very pleased with Hugh Helikson," Tarpenning added. "He ran a real strong race. He ran with the front 15 all the way, but he doesn't have a strong kick like Jan and couldn't overtake a few boys in front of him."

Tarpenning said the loss of McCray hurt the Titans. "With him in there we definitely could have finished in the top five. He is our No. 2 runner, but just couldn't go any longer. We should have finished at least fourth. The weather could have hampered us, but it hurt the other teams, too."

"Go-19" preparing for May 26 vote

The Oregon state chapter of Go-19 is working at full speed to prepare for the election May 26, which will decide the question of lowering the voting age to 19.

Go-19 feels that "as Oregon goes, so goes the nation,"--that if Oregon passes the 19 year old vote, there is a good chance that nine other states will follow suit in their November, 1970, elections.

Oregon supporters of Go-19, led by state chairman Earl Blumenauer, have established six committees.

The Executive Planning Committee, under Blumenauer's direction, is responsible for coordinating regional and campus chapters. They also have authority to approve final policy decisions.

The Speakers Bureau, headed by Dave Evans, answers requests for a discussion of lowering the voting age from civic and fraternal groups. Even without publicizing its service, the Speakers Bureau has been besieged with requests.

The Publicity Committee, chaired by Brian Mount, maintains continuous communication with Oregon news media. They also assist students in forming and informing Go-19 chapters in the schools throughout the state. Subject to fund-raising successes, a major promotional campaign will begin this winter.

Under the leadership of Steve Larson and John Fisher, the Recruitment Committee is searching for workers for the spring canvassing effort and keeping an eye open for talented regional leadership.

The Finance Committee, coordinated by Wayne Abbott, keeps books for individual chapters, who channel their funds into a trust fund, and for the Go-19 State Committee.

The detective work of Go-19 is performed by the Research Committee, which compiles statistics on young people, their political habits and motivations and their reaction when granted the voting privilege. A book may soon

LCC Board discusses satellite campuses

Satellite campuses and a campus multi-cultural center were the main topics of discussion at the Nov. 12 LCC Board meeting.

Off-campus educational centers are being considered because within three to five years LCC will have the equivalent of 6500 full time students and a satellite campus would take some of the load off the main campus.

Members of the Board discussed potential locations for the satellite campuses. First consideration is being given to Florence and the feasibility of renting buildings in that area. Various teaching methods were suggested for such campuses including an independent study program on the same order as in the Study Skills Center. Another suggestion was an electronically assisted teaching system in which students could view the class over television and be able to ask questions of the teacher afterwards.

The final decision on a satellite campus will be made by the end of the month.

The approval of the establishment of a Cultural Exchange Center hosted by the Black Student Union came after some heated discussion on whether the center would turn out to be uni-cultural or multi-cultural. It was resolved that the black groups should spearhead the program by assuming initial management responsibility because they make up 90% of the ethnic groups on campus. Other ethnic groups, such as Mexican American, could join the program.

"There is a great need to have a cultural center at this time," stated Jonathan West, vocational counselor. "The black people are trying to find a way to solve their problems."

President Pickering stated he views the move with optimism, and that the option is there for other groups to join.

Suggested guide lines for the program were handed out to the Board in brief, they are: Programs and cultural displays will

KLCC schedules second call-in show

KLCC, Lane Community College's FM radio station, will air the second of a series of call-in programs Wednesday, Nov. 19, as it presents "Focus: KLCC Presents."

Guests on this month's program will be LCC Associate Deans of Instruction Gerald Rasmussen and Ray LaGrandeur. They will answer questions and listen to comments from the listening audience.

The first "Focus" program in October, featured Dr. Dale Parnell, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and was directed toward a discussion of higher education in general. This program will be directed specifically toward listeners with questions about LCC -- its programs, classes, or any other area.

The host for "Focus" will be Mike Hopkinson, assistant professor of mass communications. The program will be heard from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Anyone wishing to ask questions of the guests should call 747-4501, extension 295.

KLCC operates at 90.3 megacycles on the standard FM radio dial.

"Silent Majority" criticized

What was intended to be a debate turned out to be a lecture last Wednesday morning in front of the Center Building. James Monroe of the Eugene Moratorium Committee was the featured speaker. Monroe is a graduate student in political science at the University of Oregon.

A campus group, "Americans for a Peaceful World" (APW), had challenged the Student Senate to debate the question, "Could American troops be better supported by means other than resolutions?" The Student Senate announced earlier a resolution to the fighting troops in Vietnam.

Not only were there no representatives from the Student Senate when Art Tegger, faculty advisor to the APW, introduced Monroe, neither was there an audience.

As Monroe began to speak in a booming voice, people began to gather. During the almost two-hour session, people wandered in and out of the audience with about 50 usually in attendance.

Monroe first charged that the Student Senate resolution was "ill-informed, ill-advised and ill-timed."

"As far as the 'silent-majority' is concerned," Monroe said,

"they are silent because they have nothing to say, and the sound is rotting our ears!"

His purpose in coming to the LCC campus, he said, was to interest the students in the moratorium movement. He attacked students because they are not participating and stated, "you are either part of the problem or part of the solution."

He accused the area school districts and the LCC campus of having "poverty of mind."

Monroe said, "U. S. policy is crushing social revolution and charged 'American Imperialism' in 'exploit of American workers, perpetuation of racism and waging of aggressive war.'"

"What about your freedom to speak?" asked a member of the audience. Monroe agreed that although he did have the right under our government to speak his criticisms, every time he did so the reaction he got was "like being pounded by feathers."

He was critical of Vice-President Spiro Agnew's "name calling" of student demonstrators. A member of the audience asked if it was not fair for Agnew to criticize students when students were so free with their criticism of the Vice-President.

Monroe then questioned how many students really were in favor of the Student Senate resolution.

John Hill, Student Senator from the electronics department, took the microphone. Hill stated he had initiated the resolution in the Senate and that it was not intended to attack the moratorium movement. He then explained how he had determined student support for the resolution in his department and added that he could not speak for the other senators. He had polled the sophomore and freshmen in the electronics department during their classes. 100% of the sophomores were in favor of the resolution and out of 35 freshmen, only one was opposed, he said.

Monroe outlined the moratorium activities planned at the U of O, launched on a history of the Vietnam situation and accused President Nixon of being "a political hack" and "middle class."

The Student Speaks

By Dave Spriggs
ASB President

A speech delivered to the newly constituted Student Senate on Thursday, November 12.

Undoubtedly, you are here with many and equally various kinds of ideas that you can't wait to get started on to help re-vitalize and shape-up the present status of your student government. This is good, it's what we have been waiting for. Don't become disheartened if you should find that some of your ideas are not new or have been tried before to no avail.

Each and every one of you is a very important part of this governmental agency. All of us, cooperating and working together, can do this college and our fellow students, whom we have been elected to represent, a great service. One thing we must always remember is that no matter how great our particular idea, cause, or project is, the fellow sitting next to you has one or two just as important to him as yours are to you. You will need his help and support to get your projects accomplished. The same goes for him--he will need you to get his through.

Courtesy to your fellow senator is of the utmost importance. More often than not, compromise will be the order of the day. This is not a "sell-out" of your ideals as much as it is statesmanship. Nit-picking and head-butting won't accomplish much more than aggravating not only the one you are trying to convince, but will generally turn those who support your project away from you and the ball game is lost. We gave up part of our private lives when we ran for office and became a student representative. Now a portion of our lives belongs to them. You will be expected to put a lot of your time into Senate projects. Some of this will come from spare time and class time, but don't let your classes lag to the extent that you must drop many courses or take failing grades. If this happens and it becomes necessary for you to drop out of the Senate, then you are of no value to your constituents, much less to yourself. After all, we are here first to get an education and second to be on the Senate.

Private idiosyncrasies and petty problems have no place in the Senate. This has been one of its greatest hazards in the past. Personality conflicts seem to keep cropping up in various places and disrupting the course of business. This has absolutely got to stop.

Questions as to what is student government, what does it do for me, and what will it do for me, keep coming up from time to time. First off, I'll say what we aren't--that is we are not here to entertain the student body, even though they do have a tendency to break up with laughter every now and then over some of the antics that have been going on in the Senate during its brief history. Primarily, we aren't here to educate the student body. If we were, we'd be members of the faculty or administration and not students. This statement, if taken out of context, is not altogether true, for here at Lane we, as students, and more so as members of the student government, have the opportunity and, yes, even duty, to participate in helping the administration and faculty set up courses of study that are needed and are relevant to the individual's particular situation. We are invited and encouraged to participate in setting up and establishing college policies.

How do we do this? Mainly through student-staff committees. Presently, these committees are about half-full. I am going to need your assistance to help find interested students that are willing to serve. Some of you will be placed in charge of seeing to it that once the committees are full, these students attend and take an active part. From time to time, progress reports will be requested. Another way to establish policy is to take part in some of the projects that are presently going through the Senate. At this time, we have three very important ones: A.B.C. recycle grading system, teacher evaluation, and curriculum review. How successful we are will depend on how much effort each of us put into the projects. We may or may not be successful; but remember, those who try something and fail are infinitely better than those who try nothing and succeed at it.

At this time I can't emphasize enough the need to work together and try to get along with each other. If we apply ourselves to the issues, we won't have time for all that petty bickering. The fellow who is pulling the oars generally doesn't have time to rock the boat. Be polite, empathetic, and tactful. If you are wondering what tact is, Howard Newton said "Tact is the knack of making a point without making an enemy."

"People Helping People" is slogan, basis of LCC Tutorial Service

"People Helping People" is the slogan and basis for the new LCC Tutorial Service. This new service, for those LCC students who are having difficulty in any particular subject, is expected to be in full operation by Winter Term.

The service is being supervised and organized by Rex Newton, a counselor here at LCC, in conjunction with students Debbie Harris and Bob Smith. They are now in the process of compiling the names of those students who feel themselves capable of tutoring other students in a certain subject. Any student who would like to be a tutor or needs tutoring should contact either Mr. Newton or Bob Smith. Mr. Newton may be located in his office on Monday, Wednesday or Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Bob Smith may be located by phoning

Mr. Newton said he wished to stress that the system would be on a one-to-one basis in order to gain closer individual teaching and flexibility. He also stated that this program will be especially helpful to those students interested in Education (as teachers) or Sociology. It will give them an idea of their teaching abilities and how to get along with people in a teaching situation.

The tutoring offices will be located in Room 234 in the Center building as soon as the system becomes operational.

LIBBY'S LANE

"What do you do with a middle-aged activist?"

"Were you there when...when it happened?"

A balding University philosophy professor had a sudden coughing attack and had to excuse himself from the room.

"WELL?" The Committee chairman looked around the conference chamber at his fellow members. "Do you mean to tell me," he said, "that not one member of the Committee was there to see the demolition of the Skinner's Butte Cross?"

Several Committeemen would have liked very much to look out of a window, away from the gaze of the chairman. This, however, proved to be difficult as the conference chamber had no windows.

"After dedicating all our energies for five years? Nobody even watched?"

"Were you...out there?" asked a very small voice at the far end of the conference table.

The chairman began to loosen his tie until he discovered that he was wearing a turtle neck. "Uh...well, no. Not exactly. (Ahem) you see I had to drive my 15 year old daughter to her obstetrician - er, I mean orthodontist and--"

"Come off it, Fred." said a chunky, middle-aged man in love beads and business suit. "You didn't have the guts to watch'm put the wrecking ball to it, did you?"

"It's not a matter of guts," the chairman retorted. It's just that it would have been an anticlimax to see them knock apart that overgrown...uh cross. That was only a final formality. We destroyed the cross a long time ago by pushing our case through the Supreme Court."

There was a long silence in the chambers.

"What next, Fred?" the little voice in the back finally said.

"Yeah Fred," asked the chubby businessman. "What's our next cause? It would wear me to a frazzle trying to keep up with the anti-war kids. And we're too white and too middle class-ish to get accepted in the Black Panthers. I'm tired, Fred."

"Doggone you guys" said the chairman. "Where's your old righteous anger and fiery indignation? Don't just sit there and look guilty - just think what you've accomplished!" He flashed a sudden unsteady smile. "This is no time for gloom! Because of us there'll be no cross shining over the city on Christmas and Easter. I guess nobody is going to infringe on our rights as citizens by erecting a religious symbol on public property. No siree! We showed 'em! The city of Eugene will not be a party to having Christ and His cross on public land!"

Two men remembered appointments and had to leave.

"What'll we go after next, my fellow concerned citizens? What are we going to add to the list of the committee's accomplishments? You know, I was just thinking - don't you think some of the Eugene area grade school Christmas plays are offensive?"

Two more men thought they remembered leaving their lights on and had to leave too.

"I mean after all, all this talk of Wise Men and Angels and Virgin Mothers...Don't you think that the fostering of these Hebrew myths in our public schools is an encroachment on our civil liberties?"

Four men glanced at their watches and said they had to run.

"Let's root out these flagrant violations of civic partiality at the base level, I say," The chairman went on. "Kindergarten is the best place to start."

Letter to the Editor

Open Letter to the Student Body: Students! All of you were forced to pay $2.00 for your ASB card when you enrolled at LCC. You had no choice. These fees amount to $28,500, which is now in the hands of the ASB government--your Senate and the club officials.

You did have a choice in whom you elected to represent you in the Senate, but you muffed it--only 560 of you exercised that choice.

Now some 35 people who have no class on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 are divvying up the loot. I thought I'd stop by at the last Senate meeting and see what they were doing with it.

I was present at the end of the meeting when a student from the Americans for a Peaceful World (APW) asked for $75.00 to pay a poet for "a reading" on the campus. One Senator said he wanted to know who the poet was and what was meant by "a reading." The poet then appeared, perched himself upon the desk in front of the president and read three poems. The audience applauded and after a short discussion, Paul Nosbisch moved that the Senate pay $75 for Mr. Russell to give a reading. Period. Later, because of objections, the motion was amended to include "four readings to be scheduled later."

Not one word was asked about the length of time of the readings. Not one word was asked about the dates (for example, this year?

or next year? or the next three months? etc.) Not one question was asked as to the poet's references or publications or previous readings....

It seems to me very irresponsible for the Student Senate to hire anyone about whom they know so little. I'm not knocking him. I'm just pointing out that the Senators are not experts on poetry and did not have enough information to decide if the poet would appeal to the majority of students. I doubt that they had your interests in mind when they blithely voted $75 of your money (to be paid in advance, I am told) for the reading of unknown material on our campus.

Personally, I don't care how popular he is or where he reads his work, AS LONG AS MY MONEY DOESN'T PAY FOR IT. But darn it all, I have a dog who rolls over and does tricks, and if the Student Senate is going to hand out money to anyone who can perform, I have an idea Fido can be persuaded to give four performances for $75... and he won't ask to be paid in advance.

KLCC IS IN

A key factor in the lack of student unrest on the community college campuses of Oregon has been the Oregon Community College Association (OCCA) according to Bert Dotson, director of College Community Services at LCC. "OCCA provides a method by which community colleges can get together and discuss common problems and develop ways to act on these problems", Mr. Dotson stated.

All 12 community colleges in Oregon are members of OCCA, which is an independent, but non-regulatory organization. It recommends policies directly to the State Board of Education and the local Boards, through its executive secretary, Dr. Don Shelton, whose office is in Salem.

As a unified group, OCCA exercises power which each community college would not have separately.

OCCA is composed of five sections: Faculty, Classified Personnel, Board, Administration and Student. Of the five sections, the one most important to the students as a whole is the student section. The individual sections meet three to four times a year while the association as a whole meets once a year, usually in May. The size of the school determines the numbers of representatives which it has in each section. LCC has five members in each section who elect their own president and officers.

The students' voice in the decision-making of OCCA is represented through the Oregon Community College Student Association (OCCSA). Oregon is unique in pioneering this field of student participation in the administrative field of campus life. "We feel that we offer a constructive way for students to become involved in policy-making decisions regarding the institutions they attend", says Jim Daniel, president of OCCSA.

Although OCCSA became part of OCCA in 1964, internal problems prevents it from "getting on its feet" until last year, according to Daniel. Now a reorganization is being undertaken designed to make the solving of local school problems and policy problems possible at the same time.

OCCSA has three basic areas of concern. The first is the policy area. This area is concerned with the relationship of the association with other policy making bodies of the community colleges. The second area is the mechanics of keeping the association running smoothly. Finally, the third area deals with local problems on each campus and their solutions.

The first area, called the President's Task Force, has seven subcommittees. They are: activities and fees control, community college and minority student, teacher evaluation, constitutional revision, national organization, political action, and publication and nationwide publicity. LCC student Herald Adams, is head of the community college and minority student committee.

The second area has five areas of activity. First, Communications, to keep a reliable flow of information moving to member colleges. Second, Media, to research and develop and intra-college news service.

Third, Ways and Means, to deal with bookkeeping, recording and budgeting. Fourth, Resolutions, to receive and review all resolutions. Finally, Social and Cultural Affairs, to process and distribute a bimonthly newspaper on social-cultural activities to all member schools.

Play tickets now on sale

Tickets for "Comings and Goings" and "The Hundred and First," the first productions of this year's LCC drama season, went on sale Monday, Nov. 17.

The two plays, described as experiments in contemporary theatre, will open December 2 and run through December 6. Performances will begin at 8:00 p.m. nightly. Tickets sell for $1.50, and no seats will be reserved in the 400 seat Forum Theatre.

Tickets may be obtained from theatre Box Office in the basement of the Administration Building. If ordered by mail, ticket requests should be accompanied by a check payable to LCC and a self-addressed stamped envelope, and should be addressed to the COMINGS AND GOINGS and HUNDRED AND FIRST Box Office, Lane Community College, 4000 East 30th Avenue, Eugene, Oregon. Tickets may be ordered via telephone at 747-4501, extension 310.

"Comings and Goings" will star Jackie McClure, Steve Wehmeir, Sandy Isom and Ralph Stedman. "The Hundred and First" will feature John Savage, Steve Harper, Cathryn McCollum, Marquita Clayborn, Steve Mize and Twila Abbot. The plays are directed by Norman Delue of the Mass Communications Department, with scene design by David Sherman of Performing Arts. The production is sponsored by the Performing Arts Department.

The third area, the Activities task force, deals with local problems on each of the 12 college campuses.

OCCSA has two conventions a year and monthly meetings which are held on one of the community college campuses. Two of the elected officers are from LCC - President Jim Daniel and Vice-president Paul Nosbisch. Marguerite Luce of LCC, is secretary to President Daniel and appointed by him. A code of ethics is one of the projects the organization is presently working on.

MISS EUGENE PAGEANT

now accepting entries

Girls! Would you like the use of a 1969 Oldsmobile convertible for six or seven months—and gas included? And how about $100 worth of gift certificates and more than $1000 in educational scholarships?

Some pretty young miss who lives in Eugene or goes to Lane Community College will win all the above prizes when she becomes Miss Eugene of 1970 next year. And it may not cost her a cent to try . . . . !

The pageant is set up this year so that every girl who enters will "take something home" in the form of the training they will receive. This training has four basic parts: poise and personality, makeup, public speaking and the availability of the facilities and personnel of a Eugene health club.

Although there is a $10 entry fee for contestants in the Miss Eugene Pageant, the Student Senate has allocated $100 to help defray this cost for any LCC eligible student.

In order to provide more entertainment value than in the past, the pageant directors have secured the services of David Sherman to act as set designer and technical director for the pageant.

Sherman, an instructor here at Lane Community College, has performed these functions for the Lane County Auditorium Association's summer musicals, as well as for the South Eugene High School plays for several years.

Entries close January 2nd and the 10 finalists will be selected on February 7th and 8th. The final judging will be held on April 4th. Any girl attending Lane Community College who will be between the ages of 18 and 28 on or before September 15th, 1970 is eligible to become a contestant for Miss Eugene.

The first four entries for the 1970 Miss Eugene Pageant were received this last week by the Eugene Jaycees. The new contestants are:

- Carol Jean Eckstrom, 21, of 1365 Ferry Street, a student at the University of Oregon and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Eckstrom.
- Kaye Mary Kadaja, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kadaja of 3317 Onyx Place, a sophomore at the University of Oregon.
- Ruth Jean Daggett, 22, of 1850 Onyx, a junior at the University of Oregon and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is the daughter of Lawrence Daggett.
- Marcia Fitch, a senior at South Eugene High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alger Fitch of 670 East 15th Street, No. 1.

The Jaycee sponsors are hopeful that the list of contestants will reach approximately 25 before the entries close on January 2nd.

Miss Eugene 1969, Linda Bussell, and the Miss Eugene Executive Committee will host another reception for all prospective Miss Eugene Candidates, their parents and other interested persons this coming November 4th, Monday, downstairs in Harris Hall, 125 East 8th Avenue in Eugene. The session will get under way at 7:30 p.m.

Miss Eugene and members of the staff will explain pageant particulars and describe the comprehensive training program each candidate will receive. Contestants already registered will receive information and details pertinent to their individual candidates. A pageant film will be shown.

If there is a sufficient number of LCC girls interested in the Miss Eugene Pageant, the Miss Eugene Executive Committee and Miss Eugene 1969, Linda Bussell, will host an informational session for the prospective candidates here at LCC in the coming weeks.

So get going, girls! The deadline is rapidly approaching. With all the cute chicks walking around the campus, we ought to give the rest of Oregon a little competition. Ask for Jay Gaffney or Geri Connors in the Senate offices or Jim Ellison in Study Skills for further information and a personal invitation to attend the next orientation session.

The deadline for entries is January 2.

Senate pays team's fare

The LCC Student Senate voted in their meeting Nov. 12 to make up the $400 necessary to send the Titan cross country team to Pittsburg for the National Championships last weekend.

Although the team had raised $900 by campaigning, $400 was lacking to pay the entire bill for transportation and lodging for the weekend. The motion to grant the team the money was passed unanimously.

Other Senate business included decisions on a tie in last week's elections; monies appropriated to the BSU, Ski Club, Chess Club and a poetry reading session; the granting of a club charter; and a discussion on representation of each Senator's constituents.

Barry Barney and Deanna Bergeth, who ran for Freshman Language Arts Senator, were to come before the Senate for a brief interview by Senate members, who would then vote to decide the tied election. Since only Barney appeared at the meeting, and Miss Bergeth reportedly had not been notified of her expected appearance, both candidates are to appear before the Senate at the next meeting.

The BSU requested a loan of $1200 to help finance a dance to be held in December. The dance, which will include two big-name bands and three well-known celebrities, is expected to draw a crowd of 5,000 people and net the BSU $12,000. Tickets will soon be on sale by BSU members for $3.50. A motion loaning the organization the money was passed.

The Ski Club was allotted $150 to finance a dance to be held Nov. 21 at LCC. The dance will be held in the room adjoining the gym in the P.E. Building and will feature the Rhythm Method Band.

The Chess Club requested and was granted $75 for the purchase of chess boards (including two braille boards) and membership cards for club members.

The APW (Americans for a Peaceful World) presented Don Russell, who read four poetry pieces before the Senate. The organization then asked for $75 for sponsorship of four readings by the poet to LCC students. A time for the readings will be set later. The money was requested in advance of the readings for the purpose of advertising.

Wrestling begins

Wrestling practice began at LCC on Nov. 17 and will continue on a three-day-a-week (Monday, Wednesday, Friday) basis.

Wrestling Coach Bob Creed stated that he expects to have fifteen to eighteen men working out, but would like to have more. Any full-time student may try out for the team.

The wrestling team is particularly in need of wrestlers in the lighter weights (118, 126, 134, and 142 pounds) to have a good representative team.

Eight matches are planned for this season, the first on January 9 at LCC.

Veterans stage troop support

The largest crowd drawn (300-400) during the three-day Moratorium activity period at LCC was gathered at noon Friday to listen to an anti-moratorium peaceful demonstration organized by the LCC Veterans Club.

Jack Whisenhunt, first vice president of the Senate, began the demonstration with the words, "It's time the silent majority said something..."

After the gathering audience sang "America", Pat Carmichael, recently returned from Vietnam, talked of his experiences while serving there. Pat was disabled while serving as crew chief on a helicopter, and received numerous medals including the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Flying medal. "Vietnam Moratorium services," he said, "are bad for the morale of the fighting men."

Mr. and Mrs. Arens, members of the American Legion in Springfield, spoke briefly about moratorium activities. "I have three teenager sons, and I don't want them to go to war," Mrs. Arens said, "but I would be terribly ashamed if they cowered from going. We are 100% behind President Nixon and 100% behind our fighting men, wherever they are."

ASB President, Dave Spriggs spoke briefly saying "We are not anti-moratorium, but we've got to get it across to the boys over there that we're behind them."

John Hill, member of the LCC Veterans Club, stated that "as we are a representative government we should support the President in his policies."

Flags of various branches of the service were displayed behind the speakers and several speakers appeared in uniform.

accordingly be consistent with the spirit and intent of LCC philosophy, i.e., open door, friendly atmosphere, honest effort to answer all questions, etc. A minimum of one academic year in the management of the program is necessary for proper organization and evaluation. Any student group shall have, upon written request and approval by the steering committee, needed time and space and the resources of the program at their disposal. Quarterly evaluation shall be made by the steering committee and reports in writing as to the effectiveness of the program shall be made to the dean of Students and to the President of the college.

In other action the Board session included:

Allocation of $3,500 from the contingency fund to subsidize bus service to the campus for the remainder of the college year. The bus company needs 166 passengers a day to break even and is getting about half that number. The Board received a petition from 91 students asking that the bus service be continued.

Authorization of $2,750 for a public opinion survey to be held later this month. The poll would review the community's attitude towards the community college.

The possibility of spending some $11,000. next school year to set up an LCC alumni board. (If the board is successful, it will be the first such organization in the Oregon Community College System.

be published on their findings. The Go-19 State Chairman, Blumenauer, states that "We are not simply looking towards young people as stamp lickens, door knockers and pavement pounders as in previous campaigns. Students and other young adults will carry all the crucial responsibilities from public speaking to writing checks and maintaining ledgers."

An Advisory Board made up of prominent business, labor and political leaders has been established to assure maximum efficiency in campaign management and in hopes of reaping some of the wisdom of experience. Those named included: Ted Gamble, Jr., Advisory Board co-chairman and president of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.; Monford A. Orloff, Advisory Board co-chairman and president of Evans Products, Inc.; John P. Allen, former chairman of the state Democratic Party; Lloyd B. Knudsen, newly-appointed director of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education; R.W. DeWeese, vice-president of ESCO Corporation; Hal Swafford, president of the Oregon Education Association; and Dr. John Phillips, vice-president for administration at Lewis and Clark College.

Titan Code available

The TITAN CODE, the LCC Student Handbook, is now available.

Published by the ASB, the TITAN CODE discusses campus rules and regulations, grievance procedures, adding and dropping classes, and the grading systems. It also contains an academic calendar, sports schedules, information on campus organizations, and the ASB constitution.

Since the CODE was compiled, there have been some changes which students should note. Pam Neiswanger has replaced Karen Anderson as Recording Secretary, and Ron Conyack has assumed the position of Treasurer which was formerly filled by Joanne Denniston.

Besides new student body officers, five clubs were recently granted charters. These are the ESP club, Water Ski Club, Archery Club, Americans for a Peaceful World, and the Chess Club. Information on these organizations can be obtained from the Student Senate.

The TITAN CODE can be obtained on the information table in the lobby of the Center Building at no charge.

for the purpose of "getting to know each other", to settle many differences that have been dividing the Senate, and to introduce new members to the mechanics of student government.

All students met Friday night to begin the three-day session with a group discussion. The discussion soon turned into a rap on topics such as the Vietnam Moratorium, previous Senate meetings, and the lack of communication between members. The general consensus after the two-hour meeting was that individuals understood each other and learned how each stood on different issues. The split that has been forming in the Senate recently was forgotten, as each person looked at everyone else as an individual with individual problems and philosophies. After the general meeting the group broke up into informal rap sessions between two, three or four people. New members had a chance to talk to each other and student advisors, Jack Carter, Frances Howard, Art Schaefer and Business Manager, Bill Watkins. Old members discussed long-developing problems that have been coming to a peak recently. Many students and faculty members were still discussing philosophies and school problems in the early morning hours.

Despite the time in morning that some students got some rest, discussion began again at 8:30 the next morning. The topic of discussion was the basics of the Student Senate, which included the authority and limits of the constitution, structure, ethics, budget and funding, and constitution of student government and student activities. Many suggestions for changes in the constitution and student by-laws were made and noted for future revision of student government. Points in the constitution were discussed to introduce new members to government procedures and to bring out any new ideas from non-involved students.

LCC President, Dr. Robert Pickering and Dean of Students, Bud Hakanson, were on hand Saturday to listen to student discussions and to provide a chance for new Senate members to become acquainted with them.

After lunch Paul Patrick spoke to the entire group on parliamentary procedures. Patrick, a Farm Implement Repair instructor at Lane who has spent much time studying the subject and has taught classes on it in the past, answered many questions that have come up in Senate meetings as to how the meetings should be run.

Later that afternoon the group met to begin discussion on Student/Staff Committees, Administration, the Board of Education and the OCCSA and OCCA.

The members then divided into small groups to cover each topic in detail and to assure that each individual understood the rules and goals of student government as listed.

Sunday morning snow began to fall about 2:00 a.m. and by time of departure at 10:00 a.m. students had to dig cars out of six inches of snow.

Art Pearl coming to LCC

Arthur Pearl, controversial Professor of Education at the University of Oregon and candidate for governor, will make a special appearance at the RAP Session on Tuesday, Nov. 25. Dr. Pearl will discuss "The Influence of the Vietnam War on Oregon's Economy."

Because of an anticipated increase in the size of the RAP audience, the group will meet in Forum 309 rather than in the Center Building. The session will begin at 11:30 a.m.

Dr. Pearl has proven a provocative speaker, and his lectures attract classes of two to three hundred at the University. It is expected that he will discuss a wide range of topics in addition to the announced subject.

Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Planning Project 1969-75 Seeks Participants

LCC President Robert Pickering and his Cabinet have initiated a process known as "Planning Project 1969-75."

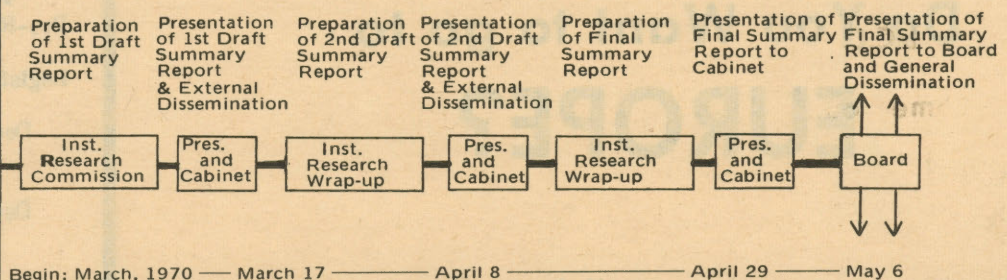

The Planning Project consists of a "series of study groups to set forth position statements and plans for the College for the period September, 1969 through June, 1975. In general, the commissions (study groups) will answer questions regarding the College's historical foundations, present position, immediate and long-term direction. All aspects of the College and its many relationships will be considered."

The chairmen of twelve commissions have been nominated from the staff and student body at large. These chairmen have, in turn, been charged with a specific area of investigation.

They have also been asked to select other individuals in the college community to serve on their respective study commissions.

Since this project is expected to have a formative influence on the growth and direction of the college, the President has asked for staff and student participation and cooperation in this venture. Several study commissions are already underway, but the majority will be initiated in January, 1970. A summary of the whole project will be presented to the Board in May, 1970.

Anyone who has not been approached by a commission chairman to serve in this project and wishes to become involved, should contact the Office of Institutional Research and Planning.

Lane's soccer team swept Clackamas Community College 7-3 at Delta Park in Portland, as they disposed of them for the second time this year.

The victory kept the Titans record unblemished, but the roughest part of their schedule is yet to come.

LCC wasted only twelve minutes before forward Fernando Seminario scored the first of his four goals. A few minutes later, halfback Gaazar Estefanian pushed through a goal. Each of these players scored again late in the first half as Lane enjoyed a 4-0 halftime lead.

Clackamas looked as if they were on their way as only two minutes elapsed in the second half before they scored.

However, Seminario added his third goal minutes later. After Clackamas had narrowed the score to 5-2, Lane put two insurance goals on the board. The first goal came from Seminario's strong left leg and the second was scored by center forward Garbis Kataroyan with only ten minutes remaining in the contest. Clackamas added a late goal to bring the final score to 7-3.

Fullback Tom Fountain and goalie Abdullah Sedairi played almost flawlessly on defense. For the sixth time this season, Fountain was the game's outstanding defensive player.

Lane did not have everything going their way, however, as starting left wing Enrique Martinez injured his leg and was unable to play.

SPORTS

First official LCC Rally Squad chosen

Six girls make up the first official rally squad at Lane Community College. Rally members include Julie Terry, Connie Clark, Chris Connolly, Mary Kay McKenzie, June Beale, and Kathy Theiss. The girls were chosen last week, and are practicing for their first game appearance Dec. 13.

Julie Terry, a 19-year-old sophomore aiming for a career as a professional secretary, said she hopes to "promote spirit, get the student body interested in school activities and to support the team" through her position on the rally team. Julie also said she hopes students will make an effort to come to the games, and although this is her first time on the rally, looks forward to a good year. A graduate of Sheldon High School, Julie plans to become involved in Water and Snow Ski Clubs at Lane.

An 18-year-old freshman, Connie Clark, named Elementary Education as her major. Connie, a graduate of Willamette High School, said she has always been very active as she belonged to the annual staff, the Top Notchers (a singing group), the drill team, and the foreign exchange club while in high school. Connie, while a member in the exchange club, spent a month in Montreal with a French speaking family.

Connie attended Lane two terms during her junior and senior years in high school and said she feels students "should be turned on to this school more." She thinks communication is one of Lane's biggest problems, as "No one knows anything in this school." In the next meeting the rally girls plan to "sit and hash out ways to get a little school spirit going" and Connie stated "everything we can think of to communicate with the student body, we're going to use it." She added that the purpose of the rally is to "lead them (the students) in the right direction."

"I enjoy taking part in school spirit and I like going to sports," was the simple explanation of Chris Connolly, 18 and a graduate of Willamette High School, as to why she ran for the rally team. "School spirit at Lane needs to be started. Last year didn't count," she laughed, "as it (the school) was still in the process of being built. This year people are thinking that it is their school and they feel more strongly for it."

Chris, a student in ADN nursing program, said Lane "should be more like a university. Why should we be any different from a university as far as student government or sports are concerned?" She believes that the team should be allowed to travel out of state "for the experience and competition of other well qualified colleges."

She also said "I hope students care that there is a rally to support the team" and that "we initiate support, but the students are the ones who actually show we can lead them but we can't make them drink."

Mary Kay McKenzie, 19 1/2, is a student in the Associate Degree Business program. Mary Kay attended Lane last Fall term and was a dancer in Edward Raggiozino's play, "Stop the World". Mary came to Lane last year from South Eugene, and said she and the squad plan on doing "a lot of experimenting" as this is the first year Lane has had a rally. She thinks the sports program "will expand," and that the girls also hope to cover women's sports. "The girls need as much support as boys do," she stated. They are as much a part of the school as the boys."

The squad plans several money-making projects, said Mary Kay. "We will be selling booster buttons and are planning sock hops after the games." She was interested in being on the rally squad because she has "enough pep, vim, and vigor to make it go." She also said she was concerned with the communication to students on events on campus as "when I took my petition around to get it signed the kids said, 'Oh-- I didn't know we had a team!'"

"I hope to see a lot of people at our games," she commented. "I don't think you can go to school and get anything out of it unless you put something in."

"I'm happy myself and I think I can lead the students," said June Beale, a 19-year-old freshman in the LPN nursing program. While still attending Willamette High School last year, she attended LCC basketball games, and feels "it's coming along just great." She said she hopes that Lane sports department will become more important in the eyes of students and that it will become more developed, as "you always associate a school with it's sports." She also said she hopes more students will come to the games. "This school has a lot of talent, and if we can get more people to come to games the guys will feel more like coming out for the sports."

June agreed with most of the other girls that the main problem at Lane is a communication problem with the students about what events are going on.

An out-of-state member, Kathy Theiss, has great faith in the rally this year "if we get on the ball and get things organized." One important factor to a successful rally, she said, is that "we not think of ourselves as social climbers. That is the only way we can do a good job in supporting school spirit and getting students interested in other activities of school."

"Nobody seems to care about the school or sports," she said. "We have to show enthusiasm." Kathy, while in University High School in Spokane, Washington, last year, participated in the Drama, Tri-hi-Y, Home Ec., and Horizon or Campfire Girls clubs. One of the main problems of the rally, she noted, is that the girls must get along and learn to act as a group "or we aren't going to get anything accomplished." She said the rally will have much support and guidance from the Rally Board which was set up this year.

Kathy is an elementary education major and is a freshman this year. She stated that she thought the team should be allowed to travel out of state, as "the team depends on the individuals in it, and if they are good enough at a sport, they should be allowed to travel to meet the best competition."

Girls Hockey team wins one, loses one in state tournament

The girls' field hockey team tied one game and lost one game in the State tournament at Portland, Saturday, Nov. 8.

In the first game they battled Pacific University to a 1 to 1 standoff. Mrs. Debbie Daggett said "The team played their best game of the season against Pacific." The girls worked themselves up for the game as indicated by their great team effort. Outstanding player awards went to Louise Stucky (Thurston), Joey Hagle (Thurston), and Dee Harmon (McMinville).

In the second game George Fox beat the girls 2 to 0. According to Mrs. Daggett this was the worst game of the season. The girls just couldn't get going after the effort put into the game against Pacific. The outstanding player went to Diane Llewellyn of Creswell.

Basketball entries

Entries are now being accepted for winter term intramural basketball teams.

Individuals are encouraged to form their own teams, however individual entries are welcome. In this case the intramural office will assign the participant to a team.

Sign up sheets are available in the intramural office. Further questions may be directed to Lynn Johnston, Physical Education offices.

McNeale - athlete of week

Lane's National Junior College Cross Country Champion Jan McNeale, has once again been selected as Athlete of the Week by the TORCH sports staff.

McNeale placed first, finish-ahead of 282 fellow competitors in the National meet held last Saturday in Butler, Pennsylvania.

McNeale, along with fellow teammate Hugh Helikson, who finished eleventh, gained All-American honors for their fine showing in the National meet.

A graduate of Thurston High School, McNeale was crowned State cross country champ in 1966. McNeale holds conference records in the mile and two mile runs. He has also placed third in the National Junior College Track Meet held last year in Garden City, Kansas.

This year, McNeale has remained undefeated in seven starts and was selected the Titan's team captain.

A look at the Pros by Bob Barley

Three-time All-American Lew Alcindor has been adjusting well to pro basketball. The 7 foot 2 inch UCLA graduate is currently ranked fourth in scoring in the National Basketball Association.

With the retirement of Celtic great Bill Russell and the injury to Laker star Wilt Chamberlain, Alcindor at this moment is possibly the best center in the league, even though Nate Thurmond, Elvin Hayes, Wes Unseld and Willis Reed are more experienced and top basketball players in their own right.

Alcindor and his Milwaukee Bucks are involved in a mad scramble for second place in the NBA's Eastern Division. The Bucks are only a game behind the second place Baltimore Bullets. Last year the Bucks won the draft rights to Alcindor by finishing in last place.

Since Alcindor is playing on a team which is not expected to win every game, he may find professional basketball enjoyable. If so, Big Lew may play pro basketball for a long time, which will be a blessing to the Bucks and a nightmare to the rest of the league.

The cries heard around the National Football League at the beginning of this season stated the Pack is back. The Packers, who reside in Green Bay, Wisconsin, dominated pro football for years before they were felled by last year's Minnesota Vikings. Packer fans vowed that the Pack will be back, but it won't be this year.

With last Sunday's 9 - 7 loss to the same Vikings, the Packers find themselves three games behind Minnesota with only six games remaining.

The New York Knickerbockers are off to one of the fastest starts in NBA history. The Knicks have won 17 of their 18 starts this year. Only the San Francisco Warriors have beaten the Eastern Division front runners.

The key to the Knicks success is their balance. With such starters as Jim Barnett, Bill Bradley, Willis Reed, Walt Frazier, Dave DeBusschere and Cazzie Russell, the New Yorkers rely on no one man.

The Popular football star OJ Simpson is having trouble adjusting to professional football. The two time All-American from USC has not accomplished those spectacular feats which won him last year's coveted Heisman Trophy. Despite the fact that "Orange Juice" has yet to spark his team, the Buffalo Bills won their third game of the season last Sunday. This is three times as many games as the Bills won all last season without Simpson.
