The LCC Library's Newsletter for Faculty
Winter 2020—Covid-19 Special Edition

Library Services Are Still Available

In response to disruptions due to Covid-19, the LCC Library has created an information page with resources and services available to you and your students for the duration. Feel free to link to this page in your Moodle courses, or email your students directly with this information: <https://library.lanec.edu/about/covid-19>

The Library already offers reference and research help via chat and email and we are committed to promptly responding to your needs whether the campus is physically open or closed. Chat and email reference assistance are available until Thursday, March 19th, and will be available again once the campus reopens on April 6th.

library@lanec.edu

The Library has many thousands of research articles, streaming media, and ebooks (find ebooks using our online catalog). All of these are accessible to staff and students 24/7 from any location with an Internet connection.

The Library has short tutorials and how-tos available on basic research processes that you are free to incorporate into assignments as is, or adapt to your needs. We also have Library widgets you can add to your Moodle courses so that students can search for books and articles from within your Moodle class website. Widgets can dramatically increase student use of Library resources!

If you are concerned about access to specific textbooks or articles, please email your liaison librarian for assistance. We may be able to find an ebook version or share an embeddable link to specific articles/content to share with your students.

Library staff is available to help you mitigate the confusion and uncertainty facing your students with regard to completing assignments and research. Let us know what you need!
