Library Resources & Services Are Available During Construction

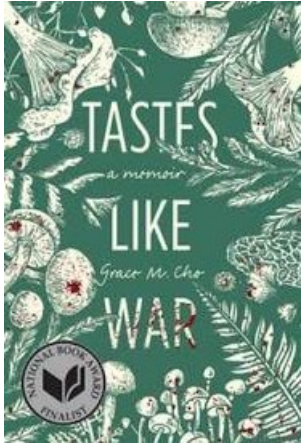

During Spring Break there was a small fire in the upper floor of the Library due to equipment malfunction. As you can imagine, a fire in the Library is probably the worst nightmare of any librarian. Luckily, the sprinkler system activated, which put out the fire. Very few books were damaged. Unluckily, there was significant water damage to walls, floors, and ceilings, which are now under construction. Several weeks ago the Library reopened with full services available. You and your students are welcome to come check out books, use the computers and print, and access any of our other resources and services. We're hoping construction will be completed by the end of May.

Celebrate Asian American & Pacific Islander Heritage Month!

The month of May is Asian American & Pacific Islander Heritage Month and the Library is celebrating with a wonderful book recommendation: Tastes Like War: A Memoir by Grace M. Cho. "Grace M. Cho grew up in a small, rural American town as the daughter of a white American merchant marine and the Korean bar hostess he met abroad. When Grace was fifteen, her Korean mother experienced the onset of schizophrenia, a condition that would continue for the rest of her life. Part food memoir, part sociological investigation, "Tastes Like War" is a hybrid text about a daughter's search through intimate and global history to understand herself and the cultural roots of her mother's condition" --Provided by publisher

"Tastes Like War" is a Finalist for the 2021 National Book Award for Nonfiction, Winner of the 2022 Asian/Pacific American Award in Literature, and a TIME and NPR Best Book of the Year in 2021.

The full text ebook of "Tastes Like War" is available to LCC students and employees through one of the Library's databases; print copies are available through the LCC Library's collection and through our Summit partner libraries. We hope that you'll join the Library in recognizing AAPI Heritage Month. Happy reading!
